BRITAIN AND FRANCE INTERVENE TO HALT STRIFE IN BULGARIA

Joint Demand for Cessation of Disorders Jeopardizing Peace of Europe—Dissension in Sofia Government Is Reported—Further Assassinations Occur

Troops Move to Threaten Rebel; Battle Is Expected in Few Days

SOFIA, Nov. 24.—The European Powers today intervened in the critical situation in Bulgaria caused by the continued bloody Macedonian feuds. Great Britain and France were reported to have jointly demanded cessation of the strife as not only menacing Bulgaria but jeopardizing the peace of the Balkans. Foreign Minister A. Butoff, while not attempting to disparage the gravity of the situation, replied that the Government had sufficient force to subdue Ivan Michailoff, but that it was most difficult to capture him and his thousands of well-armed Macedonian revolutionaries who, when confronted with danger, flee to inaccessible mountain retreats.

Butoff declared that while regular troops are within reach of Petrich, the Michailoff stronghold, the Government desires to give the revolutionary leader a last chance to capitulate before giving the order to engage him in battle.

The Government dispatched a military expedition to Michailoff's army, saying that the sanguinary feuds must cease immediately, or he and his partisans will be captured. Undaunted, the Macedonian chieftain hurled back the defiant reply, "Any Government official who signs a decree against me, gets his own death warrant."

CABINET DIVIDED
In ministerial circles it was stated at War Minister Volkoff was in disagreement with the rest of the cabinet, and that the Michailoff ministry had been weakened by the gossamer diplomatic representations made by Great Britain and France.

The vendetta between the Macedonian factions has claimed five victims. It was learned today that two men, Apostoff and Popoff, had been slain here a few days ago after leaving a letter in which they had to have opposed the Michailoff action. Another killing was reported at Kustendil, Bulgaria, where the slayer of a village was assassinated.

In contrast with these reports are statements by Finance Minister doff, and the Bulgarian Ministry of the Interior, that any serious trouble had arisen from the Macedonian disputes, and said that rumors had been spread with the sole object of compromising the Bulgarian loan abroad.

The News Agency statement said: "We are in a position to declare that not only in Sofia and Ugradin Macedonia, but throughout the entire country perfect order prevails."

IKOPLJE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 24.—Private advice received tonight in Sofia said that it was understood at the Government Army Corps that the Government would engage the forces of the Michailoff in battle.

How World's Largest Store Will Look

ABOVE is a perspective drawing of the new store to be built in Toronto by a firm already doing a very extensive business there. Features of this structure, which will contain 4,196,138 square feet of floor length of the building, and an arcade extending over 600 feet, the whole of the building, will be completed immediately by the line sketched on the perspective drawing. This unit, now under construction, will be added to from year to year until the whole programme is completed. Ross & MacDonald, of Montreal, and Sprout & Rolph, of Toronto, are architects.

Harvesters Head for Cities of B. C. Coast

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 24.—"I'm glad to be here assured of a meal," declared a young Englishman, who, with another youth, both from Liverpool, and a nineteen-year-old youth from Glasgow, Scotland, are held in the city police cells charged with vagrancy today.

All bear evidence of having had a hard time without adequate food for days. One youth said he had not tasted food for four days before they went into a cafe here on Friday and ordered fifty-cent meals each.

After devouring the food eagerly, the youths announced they were penniless and were arrested. They stated they came to Canada as harvesters, and came here on a box car from Edmonton, but had been unable to secure work. They did not want to commit any crime, but simply had to get food, they explained.

THREE FEDERAL MINISTERS COME TO AID NOMINEE

Hon. J. A. Robb Arrived Yesterday, and Hon. J. H. Malcom and Hon. J. H. King Join Party Today

LIBERAL RALLY TOMORROW NIGHT

Three Federal ministers will be in Victoria today, preliminary to the meeting on behalf of Dr. J. D. MacLean on Monday evening. Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, arrived with Mrs. Robb yesterday afternoon, and will be registered at the Empress Hotel until Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Robb has come straight through from Valleyfield, Quebec, and apart from his meetings on the coast, will only deliver one speech on the way home, at Brandon.

In addition to the public meeting here, he has been invited to address the Canadian Club of Vancouver at that city on Wednesday, and has two appointments on the same day to receive deputations on public issues in Vancouver.

Mr. Robb has not been on the coast for several years until now, although he was on his way here a year ago when recalled to the capital when he had reached Calgary.

The Minister of Finance has not given interviews in the West on this occasion, although approached at a number of points en route to the coast.

It is understood the Australian treaty, tariff questions and port development will be discussed by Messrs. Robb and Malcom at the meeting.

ART BUYERS TRICKED OUT OF MILLIONS

Italian Artist Produces Imitations of Mediaeval Masterpieces—Dealers Sell Them as Originals

PURCHASERS DUPED IN WHOLESALE WAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Because Alvaro Dossena, humble Italian sculptor, could make copies of mediaeval masterpieces closely resembling the originals, museums, galleries and collectors in the United States, Germany and Holland, are "out of pocket" some $2,000,000, it developed today.

Boston and Cleveland museums, to mention only two, are reported to have bought, as works of Tuscan renaissance masters, sculptures now called into question as "fakes," and the handwork of Dossena.

Dossena told about it in Rome today when he sued Alfredo Polisti and Alfredo Pasoli, dealers in antiquities, for $250,000. These men, he said, discovered his ability to imitate ancient masters and commissioned him to complete many works for which they were to pay him nearly 2,000,000 lire. Instead they have paid him only 650,000 lire.

Furthermore, Dossena stated in an interview, the two Alfredos made 40,000,000 lire by palming off these imitations as Tuscan originals to buyers in America, Holland and Germany. The sculptor himself did not know his works were being sold in this manner, he said, but when he learned that the antique dealers were making a fortune at his expense, he decided to sue.

Three Die When Plane Hits Tree In Snowstorm

EDGEMONT, O., Nov. 24.—Two men and a woman were killed tonight when a passenger plane en route from Cleveland to Chicago crashed near here. Several persons who viewed the crash declared the pilot evidently became confused during a snowstorm. He circled three times and in gliding down to earth the plane crashed into a tree and was wrecked.

MANY CHANGES MADE IN DOWN TOWN PROPERTY

Northwest Corner of Fort and Blanshard Sts. Sold—Several Other Deals Gone Through

BANK IS LOOKING FOR NEW CORNER

The northwest corner of Fort and Blanshard Streets has been sold, it was announced yesterday by Mr. R. G. Christy, of Christy, Hall & Company. Outside buyers have made a bid for it, and will take over the property providing those holding the lease do not exercise their option.

The property has 120 feet frontage on Fort Street and 120 feet frontage on Blanshard Street. It is understood that the price is $35,000.

Mr. Christy stated yesterday that he had completed several other important real estate deals in the downtown area, but was not prepared to divulge what properties they were, as he was carrying on negotiations to obtain adjacent real estate.

Considerable interest centres around the Balmoral Hotel, on the northeast corner of Fort and Douglas Streets. This property, which is controlled by Pepinbert & Sons, has not yet been sold, although a completion of the deal is expected any time.

Suggest Forest Industries Should Give Same Encouragement to Qualify as Colliery Operators Give to Miners

THERE have been 936 St. John Ambulance Association certificates and awards issued during the past year according to the statement furnished to the annual meeting of the British Columbia Council, held at Government House last evening.

Of this number 697 were certificates, 106 vouchers, sixty medals, thirty-four labels, one pendant, twenty-four intermediates, and seventeen nursing. The net increase on the previous year was seventy-one awards.

The report paid a tribute to the late Hon. W. Sloan, formerly honorary president. Sustained interest in the work of the association was reported, with good attendance at classes in first aid and home nursing at the various centres.

Station Roofs of London Railways To Be Airdromes

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Airdromes on the roofs of big London railroad terminal stations will be an actual thing in the not-distant future. English railroad groups have formally given notice that they will apply for parliamentary powers for aerial transport, and rail experts point out that, with the improved methods in the starting and landing of aircraft, such roof airdromes are decidedly possible.

Huge acreage is covered by these terminals. For instance, the Waterloo station, embraces twenty-four acres. Cleary Junction, has a similar acreage, Euston station, eighteen, and three others, sixteen acres each.

ATTACKS MADE BY MR. PATTULLO

EX-MINISTER URGES LIBERALS TO WARFARE AGAINST NEW PREMIER

Would Prepare for Next Election and Show Public Liberals Have Men of Ability

SOUTH VANCOUVER, Nov. 24.—"The present Provincial Government has already slashed and rough graded the road to its defeat by the policy it has adopted during the short time it has been in office. The Liberal opposition will follow the actions of the government with the utmost scrutiny and keep close check on its administration in the interests of the general public."

T. D. Pattullo, former Minister of Lands, made this attack on the Toimie administration, addressing the annual banquet of the Vancouver South Federal Liberal Association, held in Astor Hall, Friday evening.

FOR NEXT ELECTION

"Some people are of the opinion that because the Liberal party went down to defeat at the last election it should remain inactive for some time," continued Mr. Pattullo. He urged the local Liberal Association to work all the harder to prepare the field for the next election. "British Columbia is not inherently Conservative in its political leanings," he added. "There is a large body of independent thought in this province. It therefore behooves the Liberal party to keep all organizations alive. Men of character should be interested, who would give their best in the interest of the province. The general public should be shown that we have men of ability in the party."

Thirty Fishing Boats From Denmark Missing

Entire Coast of France From Belgium to Spain Swamped by Hurricane-Like Storm—Liners Ride Mountainous Waves Outside Harbor—Not Venturing In

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The gale which buffeted the British Isles and North-western Europe yesterday and today, causing some loss of life and great physical damage ashore and on the waters from the Western Coast of Ireland to beyond the Danish peninsula, was still blowing with menacing violence to-night. In most of England, however, it had dropped to moderate force. The Air Ministry warned that more stormy weather was on the way and predicted that cold weather would be an unwelcome accompaniment to the angry winds.

NEWS OF KING CONTINUES TO BE FAVORABLE

Condition Reported to Be Unchanged at Midnight—All Quiet at Buckingham Palace

PROGRESS IS MADE TOWARD RECOVERY

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The condition of King George was unchanged at midnight. All was quiet at Buckingham Palace. The King was still in a sound-sleeping room, the King is still by no means well. The slight cold, which developed into a congestion of the lungs, has now been complicated by pleurisy. Anxiety has been relieved by an official bulletin issued by Lord Dawson and Sir Stanley Hewitt, which said that the improvement which set in Friday evening was being maintained.

The development of pleurisy was lightly passed over in the bulletin as "commonly accompanying this type of congestion." It was added, however, that it was "a prominent feature" in the King's illness.

FRENCH COAST SWAMPED

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The entire coast of France from Dunkirk to Bordeaux was swamped by a southwesterly gale which blew all day and at times was almost a hurricane. There was much physical damage, but up to early this evening no loss of life had been reported.

Cherbourg reported that the liners Muenchen and Tuscania were fifteen hours late, and that the Aquitania, due at 2 p.m., did not arrive until after dark. The Muenchen and Tuscania rode mountainous waves outside the harbor for twenty hours before venturing into port.

The Rochambeau, bound to Havre from New York, sent a wireless message explaining that she had been forced to heave-to in the face of the waves for several hours. She was due at Havre at 7 p.m. but because of the delay is not expected to dock there until 7 o'clock Sunday morning.

Cherbourg added that the wind shifted from southwest to northwest this evening, and that the temperature was falling fast.

L'Orient wireless station reported the steamer Goldenio had been flashing SOS signals from thirty miles south of Ushant Light. In the region of Hazebrouck all telegraph and telephone wires were down in one stretch of eight miles.

Fear Is Felt As to Safety Of Lindbergh

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Nov. 25.—Three airplanes will take off here at 5 a.m. today to search for a plane believed to have gone down last night about twenty-five miles south of Matamoros, Mexico. The searchers fear that the machine was that of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who left Tampico, Mexico, yesterday, to fly back to the United States.

U.S.S. MARYLAND, Nov. 24.—This battleship, carrying Rear Admiral Hoover on a tour of Latin America, was so many hours behind schedule tonight that it was certain it could not arrive at Amapeka, Honduras, on Sunday morning, as planned.

The president-elect officially announced that the schedule of his good will tour would be delayed twenty-four hours as all points. The dreadnought this morning was nearly 500 miles from Amapeka. Officers said the present storm was not as severe as the one which was frequently encountered in these waters.

TRAINING IN FIRST AID IS STIMULATED

and city police having skilled knowledge in first aid is constantly drawn to the attention of the public by the press.

The majority of these officials, anxious to keep themselves proficient, take the course of lectures in first aid annually and are holders of the medallion and annual badge of the association.

TEACHERS
Attention has been drawn in previous reports to the advisability of including a first aid course in the curriculum of the Provincial Normal Schools, but up to the present without success.

It has frequently been suggested that as students of our Normal Schools, after obtaining their diplomas, are spread out in different points throughout British Columbia, sometimes situated at considerable distance from medical aid, that the study of first aid and home nursing should be included in the curriculum, and it is hoped that this will be done in the future.

It is anticipated that satisfactory arrangements may be made for these classes in Victoria in the coming year.

NURSES
With the advance of medical science, the extent of the course taken by graduates from nurses' training schools, in connection with the large hospitals, has been broadening, but the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals, of Victoria, include the St. John Ambulance first aid course, thereby many graduate nurses show the recognition of the value of these courses by qualifying for the medallion, necessitating attendance at these annual series of lectures.

MOTOR TRAFFIC
Various automobile associations throughout the country, when discussing the appalling number of serious accidents, have urged the advisability of all motorists possessing knowledge, enabling them to effectively render first aid in cases of necessity.

MINES
The majority of the large mining companies encourage their employees' interest in first aid, and also mine rescue work by defraying the expenses and offering valuable prizes in local competitions.

LUMBER MILLS AND CAMPS
Up to the present large lumbering firms have contented themselves by complying with the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act by employing a certificated attendant, but it is hoped during the coming year that they will follow the example of the mining industry, and not only teach how to treat injuries, but what is sometimes of greater importance, how to prevent minor ones developing into serious cases through unskilled handling.

LIST OF OFFICERS
Officers were elected as follows: Honorary patrons, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Hon. W. C. Nichol, president; Colonel C. W. Villiers, vice-president; G. Penneck, hon. secretary; A. J. Dallan; hon. treasurer, G. H. Stevens; hon. auditor, H. W. Edmondson; executive committee, Hon. N. S. Leighton, Hon. W. A. McKernan, Colonel Lorne Drum, Mrs. W. H. Sutherland and A. B. Hudson, Messrs. S. J. Hall and W. Fulton and Mrs. G. E. Wilson.

His Honor entertained the delegates to dinner prior to the meeting.

FRENCH LINE AWARDS CONTRACTS FOR FIVE VESSELS FOR B.C. RUN

Norway Pacific Company Will Add Two Ships—Begin Fortnightly Service to Britain

VANCOUVER, Nov. 24.—Announcements were made today by two local steamship offices of the addition to their British Columbia Coast service of two new vessels respectively. The Empire Shipping Company, of Vancouver, made public a statement that the French Line, for which they are local agents, has one motorship and two steamers under construction which would be placed on the Vancouver run from Europe before October, 1929. In addition, contracts for the fabrication of two other vessels have been awarded. The ships will be of 11,000 tons deadweight, with accommodation for forty passengers. The same company also announces the establishment of a monthly sailing schedule to this port by the Libra Line, operating out of the Mediterranean.

With the arrival here of the St. Benjamin Franklin on Wednesday, Nov. 24, the Canadian-American Shipping Co. agents for the Norway Pacific Line, will offer a fortnightly service to the United Kingdom. The same line is now building two new motorships in Denmark for this run which will be launched early in 1929.

GRADUATES OF MCGILL DINE

BRIG.-GEN. McNAUGHTON IS HONORED BY LOCAL BRANCH AT ANNUAL REUNION

Relates What Universities of Canada Are Doing to Help Officers' Training Corps

The local organization of the graduates of McGill University held a very enjoyable reunion last evening, being the annual meeting of the organization. Mr. J. B. Clearhue is president of the body and presided at the gathering, which took the form of a dinner at the Empress Hotel. There were some fifty graduates present.

The guest of honor on the occasion was Brigadier-General A. C. J. McNaughton, C.M.G., D.S.O., who has been D.O.C. of this district, but who is now about to leave to take the important post of Chief of Staff at Ottawa. General McNaughton was attached to the faculty of McGill before the war.

He took as his subject "The Relations of National Defence to the Universities of Canada." In elaborating the subject it was pointed out by him that during the war the universities of the Dominion had set up training courses for officers, and one had but to inspect the memorial tablets that were erected in institutions like McGill to see that these institutions had done their duty for the country.

TRAINING CORPS
This work, however, he pointed out, had not stopped at the end of the war. There were nineteen universities in Canada which were providing training courses for officers at the present time, and there were about 300 young men undergoing each year. These men were being educated to be in a position in the case war should ever again arise to send assistance in the defence of their homeland.

The University of British Columbia, which was looked upon as a sort of daughter of McGill, had taken up this training course and would have a training corps by Christmas of some 200.

The militia forces, he said, were therefore coming into very close touch with the universities of the country. This was especially true of the Air Force. In the war 40 per cent of the officers in the flying machines were Canadians.

At the end of the war the Air Force was called into existence, but in 1923 this was abolished, and the flying service was brought directly under the Department of National Defence. It had been decided to throw the universities and the Air Force into one, and this was being carried on. While the students took their studying in the winter they were given employment in national work during the summer; in many cases for which they were paid. Several hundred of the corps were being trained all the time at Camp Borden.

The department was also working

PROTECTION OF MAIN ROAD WILL BE DONE BEFORE SPRING

Contractors Will Carry on Operation Day and Night Until Completed

On Tuesday next tenders for the protection work that the Provincial Department of Public Works is to carry out on Nicomen Island, will be opened in the afternoon in a competitive way. The tenders will be opened in the afternoon in public. This work, which is to be hurried to completion, has been expected for some little time. There have been negotiations between the engineers of the two departments, that may be used in throwing the earthworks to protect the coast line, and thus prevent the washing away of the road, work day and night until the work is completed. This will not involve any additional expense, it is anticipated, and will insure the completion of the work before the high waters next spring.

MUST HAVE WARRANT FOR QUEBEC ARRESTS

QUEBEC, Nov. 24.—Chief Justice Perras, decided in the Montreal courts today that it was illegal for a peace officer to arrest without a warrant persons found in "blind pigs" or in other words, in places where liquor is sold contrary to the Quebec Liquor Act.

Judge Perras' decision brought from Premier Taschereau, an Attorney-General for the province, the comment that if arrests cannot be made without warrants having been previously outlined and obtained, the law would become inoperative and it would be necessary to amend it at the next session of the legislature.

With 200 tons of general cargo for discharge, the Holland America liner Emody is expected at Rishat Piers from the United Kingdom at 8 o'clock this morning, according to Mr. A. P. Moffat, agent.

The Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Shikoku Maru is due at Rishat Piers at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, to sail one hour later for the Orient.

MANY CHANGES MADE IN DOWN TOWN PROPERTY

also reported to be looking for a suitable corner location in which to establish itself, as its lease in the Jewell Block is nearly expired. This may cause another important change in downtown property.

Mr. Harry Leech, of Santa Monica, California, who has recently become a citizen of Victoria, has left for Beverly Hills to make arrangements with Mr. R. F. Hayden, his partner in the purchase of the southeast corner of Vancouver and Fort Streets, with respect to building a $60,000 public market building there. One of the Piggy-Wiggly chain stores, groceries, will occupy this building when completed. Work on actual construction will begin in January. At present the property is being cleared prior to letting the contract for the work.

Mr. J. T. Armstrong, realty expert of the Piggy-Wiggly stores, arrived in the city yesterday to find three locations for chain stores. He said the company planned to establish ten stores here altogether.

CONTRACT TO BE AWARDED

In connection with the remodeling of the southeast corner of Fort and Broad Streets for R. F. Castle & Company, stockbrokers, it is expected a contract will be awarded by the end of the month. The stockbroking office, with a long quotation board, will occupy the Broad Street frontage, and the stores facing on Fort Street will be remodeled, and faced with Persian marble. Mr. Percy Fox, architect, has prepared plans for this work.

One of the tenants dispossessed by the change, the British Public Schools Club, has acquired Chancery Chambers, fronting on Langley Street and Bastion Square, and will remodel the interior for club premises.

B.C.'S FOREST OUTPUT GROWS

CUT OF TIMBER FOR 1928 ESTIMATED AT TEN PER CENT ABOVE 1927

Changes in Last Two Months of Year May Alter Total—Log Export Decreases

British Columbia timber production in all lines will be approximately 10 per cent greater this year than 1927, according to rough preliminary estimates released by the Provincial Forestry Service. While lumber prices are reported slightly higher than last year, paper prices are down somewhat, and on this account officials declined to forecast definitely the value of the annual timber crop. It should be larger than the figure of $83,000,000 in 1927, and nearly above the 1926 figure of $84,802,000, the highest on record to date.

LOG EXPORT REDUCED

These expectations, which of course are subject to amendment through changes in market conditions during the last two months of the year, are based on log sales for the first ten months. These indicate that all lines of lumbering will produce 10 per cent more than in 1927. At the same time the export of raw logs has been reduced by 15 per cent, it is stated.

Officials expect the province to produce about two billion, eight hundred million feet of timber this year, as against the record figure of two billion nine hundred million in 1926. At the moment the lumber industry shows a slight improvement over the unsatisfactory conditions prevailing in the last two years, and production is increasing, according to October sales figures.

and the difference is largely inside the enameled cabinet.

Before you think of buying any cabinet heater, let us show you Sunbeam's furnace-type cast iron heating unit; its 84-pound fire pot; its gallon capacity water pan for air moistening; its dust-tight and smoke-tight construction. Then you'll know why this superior cabinet heater will heat a 5 to 7 room home, upstairs and down. And remember, Sunbeam prices today are the lowest in history.

IMMIGRATION OUTLOOK GOOD

Movement of Settlers Growing and Work is Organized on Large Scale

Immigration to Canada during the month of August totaled 25,340 as compared with 10,242 in August, 1927, an increase of 147 per cent. Movement from the British Isles totaled 12,460, this including more than 8,000 harvesters; from the United States 3,581, and from other countries 9,299. For the eight months of the calendar year the immigrant movement aggregated 147,919 as compared with 129,920 in 1927, an increase of 4,709; British immigration totaled 45,365 as compared with 43,927, an increase of 2,668; that from the United States 21,028 as compared with 16,258, an increase of 4,770; and from other countries 68,326 as compared with 70,265, a decline of 2,039. During the same eight months period 22,833 Canadians who had made permanent homes in the United States, residing there for six months or longer, returned, as compared with 30,747 so returning in the corresponding period of 1927.

OF GOOD TYPE

While the increase in the number of settlers entering the country has not been as large as the Dominion would like to see, colonists moved in the past Summer have been of uniformly fine type for the main part, bound directly to the agricultural industry. The stimulus to land settlement in Western Canada has, in fact, been most marked. There has been a considerable increase in the volume of Canadian Pacific farm lands disposed of. During the first eight months of the year homestead filings in the territory totaled 1,084 as compared with 658 in the period of 1927, an increase of nearly 200 per cent. Though this increase must be partially attributed to the new Government regulation permitting second homestead filing in the case of settlers who had proved up on the first homestead prior to January, 1925. At the same time, the Canada Colonization Association, working for the occupation of four-fifths of the lands along Canadian Pacific Railway lines in Western Canada, in the month of August was responsible for placing forty-four families of 9,832 acres of land worth $330,890, making its record for the eight months of the year 460 families located on 81,394 acres of farm land.

As regards prospects for the coming year these are generally felt to be decidedly more encouraging. The excellent crops harvested in Western Canada have served to further improve the already comfortable state of that territory's agriculturists, so that they are in a more prosperous condition than ever in history and face the future with unbounded confidence and optimism. Apart from every other consideration, the most inevitable act as a powerful magnet, at least upon the dwellers in the adjoining agricultural states which are best supplied with the facilities existing in the West.

Prospects are very much brighter for a movement from Great Britain. The visit to Canada of Lord Lovat, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies and chairman of the Overseas Settlement Committee, with the object of interesting Dominion and provincial governments, the railways and other organizations in formulating schemes for British settlement in co-operation with the Overseas Settlement Committee, were apparently most fruitful and definitely dispelled any impression that Canada was not anxious for British immigrants, did such ever exist in the official mind. While the details of agreements arrived at are not disclosed, pending further conferences between the British and Canadian Governments, sufficient is known to forecast a movement from the British Isles which will probably surpass anything in the past. Lord Lovat prior to his departure announced that one thousand British families would be moved from Britain to Canada next year under a sort of extension of the 3,000 family scheme, involving expenditures on the part of both British and Canadian Governments, and at the same time a further scheme aimed at the settlement of 500 families in the Maritime Provinces. In addition to this the scheme already announced of Canadian Pacific Railway participation and that undertaken by the company in conjunction with the Hudson Bay Overseas Settlement, Limited.

AMATEUR FIGHT CARD IS GOOD

Victoria Boys Give Fine Account of Themselves Against Mainlanders at Tillicum Club Show

McCOY IN DRAW WITH ART YOUNG

Featured by plenty of heavy slugging, free mixing, and in fact everything that goes to make a good fight show, last night's Simon-pure performance at the Tillicum Athletic Club's boxing contests gave the 300 fans an evening of entertainment on a par with any that has been seen here for many a moon. There were no knockouts, but there was a number of the boys who were glad when the final gong sounded.

Visiting mitt slingers fared almost on even terms with the local artists, winning two bouts and gaining one draw. Victoria's batters won three of the six bouts in which they competed.

In a strong-finishing last round, during which he threw gloves from all angles, Young McCoy fought his way to gain a draw with Art Young, of Vancouver. The Mainlander had piled up a small lead in the two earlier rounds. McCoy weighed 137 and Young 135.

JACK HANNAH WINS
Jack Hannah, of Victoria, was given the call over Cathey Howard, of Chemainus, after three rounds of heavy milling in which the local boy landed the larger number of blows. They fought at 155 pounds.

Robert McMillan, of Vancouver, had too much ring experience for Wilfred Shoultice, and had no difficulty in taking the judges' decision. In the last round the local lad tore into his opponent, but after landing a few punches, tired and spent, he returned. Shoultice weighed 114 and McMillan 111.

With his face smeared with blood after the first round, his legs sagging, Walter Spaven, local boxer, bowed to one of the worst lickings in his youthful pugilistic career at the hands of the shifty Johnny Foster, of Vancouver, in a three-round mix.

"SONNY" BUXTON WINS
"Sonny" Buxton was given the call over Battling Nelson, of Vancouver, after each of the boys had landed some heavy blows. The only thing battling about the Mainlander was his name. Buxton weighed 150 and Nelson 145.

Clarence Leask, one of the cleverest of the local pug, gave Roy Collier an artistic trimming in the second bout of the card. The local lad had his opponent in trouble quite a few times, but he managed to weather the storm. They fought at 100 pounds.

In the curtain raiser, Young Buxton was given the call over Ronald McEwen. The boys fought at sixty-four pounds.

Langford Footballers Win From Colwood

LANGFORD, Nov. 24.—The newly-organized Langford Football Club played its initial game of the season yesterday afternoon, defeating the Colwood Athletic Club on the former's grounds, and come through to victory 2 to 1. At half time the score stood one-all. In the last moments of the game C. Brown registered the winning tally with a fast drive from close range. The lineup was as follows:
Langford—J. Wilkinson, N. Clark, G. Brotherton, B. Brotherton, Keith, C. Brown, B. Pagan, K. Hinks, D. Seale, G. Quan, C. Town, Colwood—Collier, Piercy, Peas, D. Piercy, Brown, Meadows, Walsh, Gifford, A. Piercy.

BRIEF CAREER
Luis Firpo, Argentine heavy-weight, engaged in few, gave his only other pugilist in history who attained equal prominence. He fought fifty-two times, scoring twenty-two knockouts.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

STIMULANTS CAUSE DEPRESSION

In the humdrum grind of everyday life we are exposed to fatigue, worry and disappointment, and there seems to be a common tendency to turn to some stimulant to cheer us up or rouse us and overcome the tired feeling and lassitude. Modern efficiency has searched out the stimulants and narcotics in other lands. We have the opium from India, coca leaves from Peru, coffee from Arabia, tea from China, wine from France, hashish from Persia and Turkey, whiskey from the bootlegger knows where, koka from Africa, and cocoa from the West Indies.

Although the use of stimulants and narcotics has existed to some extent since the beginning of history, it never was as universally practised as it is today. This is largely because the average person is undernourished in the important mineral salts, and he is easily fatigued because his body is unable to obtain the required amount of oxygen or to eliminate the toxins as quickly as they accumulate.

The feeling of stimulation immediately following the use of these drugs is a deception. They do not add strength to the body—they merely anesthetize our sense of fatigue. In doing this we paralyze one of the most important defences of the body. We become fatigued whenever the blood stream becomes loaded with fatigue toxins to an extent that they are dangerous to the nervous system. By allowing these toxins to accumulate still more, which they do even though we do not feel them, we may irreparably injure the brain or nervous system. The use of stimulants undoubtedly shortens the life and destroys the appearance of health and beauty.

U.S. Boxer Wins

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Nov. 24.—Wesley Ketchell, American boxer, knocked out Harry Mason, English boxer, in the first round of a scheduled fifteen-round bout here tonight. Ketchell weighed 155 pounds and Mason 154.

Cambridge and Oxford Universities in England have met eighty times in their annual rowing classic.

ISLAND HOCKEY TEAM DEFEATED

Mainlanders Take First of Inter-city Fixtures by 5-2 Score—Parr Neta Both for Islanders

VANCOUVER, Nov. 24.—Mainland defeated the Island, 5-2, in the first inter-city grass hockey clash at Comnaught Park here today in a game which was much closer than the score indicates.

Superior play by the local half-backs, who repeatedly broke up the attacks of the visitors, had a lot to do with the result. The Mainland forwards worked smoothly all afternoon, with Abercrombie, Desbriay and Parr being the most effective. The latter got three of the five goals.

The Islanders were very much in the battle, but many of their rushes ended at the half line where Farrer was getting in on their rushes repeatedly.

The half-time count was 3-1. Letts got two goals for the locals. Parr scored both for the Island.

Bushell and Staples were the referees. The teams:
Mainland—Sandhu, Rhodes and Hudson; Farrer, Browne and Saunders; Desbriay, Stone, Letts, Pinnie and Abercrombie.
Island—Bird, W. Bird and Phillips; Huston, Cassels and Wilkinson; Crofton, Hodgson, Parr, Allendale and Dunlop.

WITH THE TRUNDLERS

What a rude awakening the Dynamites must have suffered last week on the alleys when the Times Compos came along and took three games from them and pushed them to the top of the ladder into third place. Never mind, Dynamites, you are still in the running, and all that is necessary for you to cop the championship of the first half of the season is to win the last three Fivpin League scheduled in a whirlwind finish. After all life is full of ups and downs, and as far as the pins are concerned they are always on the up and down.

John Quinn and his Quinnettes jumped back into the premier berth in the Fivpin League last week when they took three games from the Colonist Editorials. The writers were sure many a Dynamite, who did roll were doing everything but spill the pins. Their scores were the worst they have put up this season, and they want to make a showing they will have to snap out of their slump and roll much better scores.

Colonist Types and Times Compos, who were rated as the dark horses in the early stages of the league, have shown gradual improvement and today are joint occupants of the second berth, being but two games behind the league leaders. Colonist Types rolled in good form last week and were able to take two games from the C.N.R., whereas the Times Compos surprised not only the Dynamites but many other followers of the game by their performance.

King Pin has been informed that George H. Patton has donated a cup for the championship of the first half of the Fivpin Bowling League. The writer would like to thank Mr. Patton for his kind act, while, need less to say, the boys who spill the pins also appreciate this kindness on the part of one of Victoria's most popular sportsmen.

Then another well-known man in the person of Mr. Reginald Hayward, M.P.E., has it is understood, come forward with a cup for the championship of the Fivpin League. This is of Mr. Hayward's first trophy for local sportsmen to compete for, as the writer is fully aware of other cups that have been presented by this popular member of the Legislature.

In the Commercial League things seem to be going along nicely with little or no change in the standing of the teams. Victoria Baggage are keeping up their consistent bowling and to date have only dropped one game out of fifteen. This is a good average. King Pin would like to take this opportunity of congratulating the Baggage men on their good work.

Jokers, formerly Westholme Hotel, have climbed to first berth in the City League with a one-game advantage over the Colonist Night Owls and James Island. The City League teams are topping plenty of pins and a number of the games are being won and lost by small margins.

Colonist Night Owls came out of their slump last week when they took two games from James Island. They rolled over 900 pins in these two games. Keep up this good work, Colonist Night Owls, and you will be more victorious from you in the very near future.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—Dr. A. S. Lamb, president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, secretary of the Canadian Olympic committee and manager of this year's Canadian Olympic team, is going to sever his connection with these two bodies, his resignation to take effect at the annual convention of the A.A.U. of C. at Port Arthur during the first week of December. HER TEMPER'S OUTLET
She was married to a man whose devotion had never lagged for a second, who never lost his self-control or grumbled whatever happened. Unfortunately, she was born with a temper like gunpowder.

"Tell me, dear," he said, after one outbreak on her part, "how it was I never discovered this unhappy weakness of yours during our courtship days? How did you restrain yourself?"

The poor little woman hesitated before answering such a straightforward question. Then, sobbing bitterly, she laid her fair head upon his sturdy shoulder.

"I used to go upstairs," she gasped, "and b-b-b-p-p-pieces out of the top of the oak b-b-bureau."

MAKE CHANGES IN CRICKET RULES

Governing Body in Old Country Alters Methods of Compiling Averages

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Radical changes in regulations governing county cricket were adopted today at a meeting of the advisory committee governing the game. A special sub-committee which has been studying suggested changes today submitted a report which was adopted. It is suggested that every county competing in the championship should play twenty-eight games and no more against other competing counties. It was also recommended that the present system of percentages in compiling averages should be abolished and the following method substituted:

Win outright, 8 points; match finished, scores equal, 4 each team; win on the first innings, 5 opponents, 3; unfinished matches with no result on first innings or no play, 4 each team.

The county which gets the largest number of points will be the champion.

Home Complexion Peel Beautifies Skin
It is simple to make your complexion beautiful and keep it so by the regular use of pure unperfumed wax. Procure an ounce from your druggist and use as directed. It will gently but surely melt off all the dirt, withered or blemished skin with such defects as freckles, pimples, blackheads and excessive oiliness. The new skin then revealed is smooth, fresh, firm and glowing. Looking Mercivall was brimmed out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other lines, use as face lotion 1 ounce powdered castille and one half pint witch hazel. (Advt.)

Burgess Bedtime Stories

Rusty Gets Busy

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

It was time for Rusty the Fox Squirrel to get busy. He had found a land where there was plenty to eat. Now he had the moon of his opportunity, for it was getting late in the season. The first thing was to find a home. He had to get acquainted with this place in which he had chosen to make his new home. He must know all the hollows in the trees and all the hollow logs. He must find out where other people lived.

So for a while Rusty was a very busy squirrel, as he ran this way and that, and he had a good deal of time on his hands. But Rusty spends even more. At last Rusty found a hollow in a tree trunk. It was deep enough and it was big enough. Best of all, it was not occupied by any one. He knew this as soon as he went inside, for there were no beds there. Rusty proceeded to make a bed. This was to be his winter home.

"Now," said Rusty, when his bed was made to suit him, "I've got to find some storehouse. I won't do it. Rough Brother North Wind and Jack Frost catch me without plenty of food stored away. It was for this that I left the Green Forest and made the long journey to this place."

So Rusty began hunting. By and by he found a hollow log on the ground. It was half covered by brush. Rusty's eyes sparkled. He went inside. There were some dirt and leaves in there. These he cleaned up. Then he started for the nearest hickory tree. How he did work storing away nuts in that hollow log. There were nothing but hickory nuts in there. In the end of the log he pushed some dry leaves. This was so that no one coming along would peek in and discover those nuts.

"I must have some beechnuts," he thought. "Beechnuts are sweet and fattening. I certainly must have some beechnuts," said Rusty, as he talked to himself.

He didn't have to go far to find them. When he found them he began looking about for a place nearby in which to store them. Between two roots of a great tree was a hollow. Rusty cleaned it out and dug it a little deeper. Then he filled that

Yuletide Festival Will Recall Ancient Customs

Interesting Features Have Been Planned for Period Between December 22 and January 5 — Recipe for Traditional Pie

Pages of history will be turned back and old customs of the Christmas past will walk again this year during the Yuletide Festival at the Empress Hotel. Revival of that was best of the Old English Christmas customs, many of which have slipped into the discard, to be supplanted by modern times, is the underlying motive of a series of seasonal festivities to be shared by the people of this old rose-garden capital, but by descendants of the sturdy old English stock from many parts of Canada and the United States.

Very properly, the religious significance of the feast, preserved through the ages, forms the central motif of the festivities, to be typified in this instance of all religious Mysteries, precursor of all religious plays and a gem lifted straight from its setting in the mediaeval England of 600 years ago. This deathless play on the devotion of the Shepherd and the Magi, written by an ancient monk of Chester, is to be presented by the Little Theatre group under the direction of Major L. Bullock-Webster.

Many other features of the festival in a new land, and many are still being faithfully preserved in England, where the very name of Christmas conjures pictures of the blazing Yule log, the steaming wassail bowl, the mumming, dancing, glorious old music, carol singing and the good old British feasting that have accompanied the hollytime festival for generations.

Welcome be ye that are here. Welcome all, and make good cheer.

Welcome all another year. Welcome Yule—says an old mediaeval carol that has passed into a few words all the whole-hearted good fellowship of Christmas.

And speaking of feasting... They were lusty trenchermen, those of the old British race; a feast was a feast, not an affair to be approached lightly by our more dietetic age. Good wholesome food, though, as witness the eminent Newcastle Chronicle, which, on January 6, 1770, set down for posterity the components of a traditional Christmas pie, as follows:

"Monday last was shipped from Howick to Berwick, to be shipped from London to Sir Henry Gray, Bart., a pie, the contents of which are as follows, viz.: 2 bushels of flour, 20 pounds of butter, 4 geese, 2 turkeys, 2 rabbits, 4 wild ducks, 2 woodcocks, 6 snipes and 4 partridges, 2 neals' tongues, 2 curlews, 7 blackbirds and 6 pigeons, 12 stones, 168 pounds, will take it was near nine feet in circumference at bottom, weighs about two men to present it to table; it is neatly fitted with a case, and 4 small wheels to facilitate its use to every guest."

There is no corner of America in which the Christmas spirit of Old England could be so effectively captured as in this city.

The Empress Hotel, with its stately green lawns, embowered in evergreens and the holly trees that are in themselves symbolical everywhere of the Christmas spirit, is a stage setting that could not be equalled anywhere on the continent for a festival such as is planned this year.

This condition has made it easy for the originators of this year's Christmas festival to follow with little deviation the age-old customs which it is intended shall be represented. Paradoxically, the utter novelty of the whole celebration will be its chief attraction.

A modern touch to the time-hallowed festivities, though patterned after the old, will be a running commentary of Christmas music throughout the holiday period. With the traditional carol will be mingled the strains of the latest dance music, with the homely Christmas dithes of Old England the newest delicacies that modern kitchens and modern chefs can turn out will vie for favor on the groaning sideboards.

It should be emphasized that the word "festival" has no relationship to the modern competitive festival of music. While definite musical and dramatic programmes have been arranged, the chief idea of the holiday arrangements is that every guest at the Empress and every visitor shall share equally in the festivities.

"Fit as a Fiddle!"

Real fitness is worth more than dollars, more than genius or blue blood, or beauty. Yet you can have this precious possession free, safely, easily—just by following a few simple rules. Just as this man did. Read his letter—

"I feel I must write and let you know what I think of Kruschen Salts. I had a very severe attack of influenza which left me very weak, and I felt fit for nothing."

"I was recommended to try Kruschen Salts, and the first dose put me right, and to-day I feel a new man and as fit as a fiddle. No sufferer should be without them."

"They are a boon and a blessing to all, and are worth their weight in gold."

—Albert Henry Seago, Original letter on file for Kruschen.

MR. COOLIDGE WOULD ENTER WORLD COURT WITH RESERVATIONS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—President Coolidge is understood to be ready to have Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State, reopen negotiations with foreign powers to obtain their approval of the reservations proposed by the Senate in voting United States adherence to the World Court.

The understanding that Mr. Coolidge is interested in reviving the subject was held by members of a Senatorial party of fifteen who had breakfast at the White House today. They related also that the president expressed a hope of action at the forthcoming session of Congress on the Kellogg treaty for renunciation of war and the naval construction bill. Several national reservations surrounding the proposed entry into the World Court and the question of adherence to the court has been regarded as a closed subject. However, last session, Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts, offered a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the Senate that the president should again seek approval by the foreign powers of the American reservations. By a close vote this was postponed by the Senate foreign relations committee.

Today the president is understood to have evinced a desire to have Secretary Kellogg take up this subject with the world powers.

INQUIRY WILL BE HELD INTO PLANE CRASH

Department of National Defence to Appoint Board of Investigation—Inquest Is Set for Monday

MANY THEORIES ARE ADVANCED

A board of investigation will be appointed by the Department of National Defence to inquire into the airplane crash on Friday, in which Mr. Arthur Raybone, R.A.F., was killed and Mr. Valdemar Bendotti, R.A.F., was injured, it was learned yesterday.

An inquest into the death of Mr. Raybone will be held in the B.C. Funeral Parlors at 10 o'clock Monday morning, it was announced by Dr. E. C. Hart, the coroner.

Several theories have been advanced as to the cause of the accident in addition to that of Mr. Bendotti's friend of the two flyers and an eye-witness, who believes that Raybone and Bendotti who had planned alternate control of the dual control machine, became confused at a critical moment.

Pilot A. H. Wilson, who was flying the Moth plane at the time, stated yesterday that the Eaglehawk had been engaged in stunt flying just before the accident occurred. He said the plane straightened out over the field and the pilot evidently pulled back the "joy-stick" and accelerated the motor, intending to zoom upwards. The steep angle combined with slow speed, caused the plane to stall, he believes. He expressed the opinion that had the machine been higher up, the pilot might have been able to bring the plane up again from the nose dive.

Other theories advanced include one that the engine stalled, but no one remembers having seen or heard any sign of engine trouble.

Mr. Bendotti, who is reported well on the road to recovery from his injuries, was in confusion between the pilots at the time of the accident, but said he did not know what occurred, as the accident happened and was over in a flash.

Saanich Arm Is Ideal Fishing Resort Within Easy Reach of Victoria

By H. D. PATTERSON

The people of Victoria and the adjacent districts have a wonderful possession in the waters of Saanich Arm—a majestic salt water inlet separating the Saanich Peninsula from the Mill Bay and Cobble Hill districts, and farther south forming a cleft between the forest-clad mountains of the Highlands and the Malahat.

From the Goldstream Mats, where the Goldstream Lakes drain into the Saanich Arm, to the tip of the Saanich Peninsula, is a distance of fourteen miles, and in the wider parts of the arm to the north its breadth varies from two to five miles.

Its dark green waters, ruffled by breezes, spread with whitecaps on a southwest wind, or lying placid on a calm day, descend to very great depths. On showery days many a rainbow arches over the bulk of Salt Spring Island to the north. At sunset the ripples take on the most wonderful poster shades.

Looking across from Brentwood Bay at night the great bulk of the Bamber Cement Works makes a fairy glitter of light, while far above occasional motor-car headlights flash and disappear on the heights of the Malahat, and the beams from other cars skirting the edge of the water at Mill Bay are seen to the north.

This noble body of water furnishes a wonderful opportunity throughout most of the year to those fishermen who do not content themselves with a boat, an opportunity for healthy recreation with little expenditure of time or money.

Where else in the world can you leave a city the size of Victoria and in thirty-five minutes by car be at a boat-house, and half an hour later be enjoying the sport of fishing for salmon either from a rowboat or motor launch, and all at a cost within reach of the humblest citizen?

No forty-dollar rod, thirty-dollar reel, tapered lines or other expensive gear are needed to enjoy fishing in these waters; in fact, such costly equipment would quickly be ruined in salt water. The humble hand line, or an inexpensive rod and reel are sufficient to secure good sport.

Some fisherman are inclined to deride the sport of trolling, but in order to make good catches in the Saanich Arm, especially during the winter, just as much knowledge, patience and skill is required as the angler with the fly needs to succeed. Anyone can catch a few fish there occasionally, but the man who makes consistently good catches in the Saanich Arm is one who knows where the fish are located from day to day, how deep and on what they are feeding and what special lure to use to attract them; what period of tide is best, what speed his boat should be moving at, and many other little fine points of procedure which can only be known and put to use after years of effort, study and observation.

Stylish Models and Fabrics for Women

Deauville Anticipates Palm Beach

THE present furore for elaboration common to all manner of apparel finds echo in beach fashions. Bathing bags seen on the beach at Deauville foreshadow the styles that will be in evidence at Palm Beach and other resorts on this side of the Atlantic.

There is a strong inclination toward things Oriental at the French watering place, especially with relation to beach coats and their method of frivolous and colorful decoration.

In the current reign of color and more color, gay red, bright green and sparkling yellow appear to be the chosen hues, most effectively used with an accent of black.

Indicative of startling shades manifest at the bathing hour is the gorgeous Oriental coat and pantaloons pictured, both pieces of the ensemble heavily embroidered in bold tones.

A bathing coat in Japanese design employing stripes in red, green and black on a white ground with inset floral motifs on border and collar line is illustrated. This is a new version of the universally popular coolie coat.

Seemingly impractical but thoroughly delightful is the very feminine bathing suit created by Jenny, its pink and green color combination heightened by a trimming of paillettes.

For those taking the sun after immersion in the surf there is the fringed beach robe. Premet has effected a very striking contrast in a black robe deeply fringed and striped sparingly with yellow.

Jane Regny's interpretation of the last word in the regulation coolie coat type to accompany the bathing suit is a white fabric with huge design between the shoulders and above the hemline in strong contrasting shades, a smaller pattern appearing on the wide sleeves.

The Flare Goes to the Back

THE hemline flare, given every possible position and interpretation at front and sides of coats, is slightly at the centre back. To be at all wearable the back flare must be artistically achieved as in this coat from Paton, conceived of arched blue fabric with a trimming of grey fox.

DEFINITELY face-framing and usually without the aid of the familiar and customary soft swirl of marcelled locks, the very small hat escapes trying severity by irregularity of outline.

Felt and velvet continue to excite the enthusiasm of the modiste and are the themes of endless originality. Black is, of course, much sought.

Workmanship has long been the means employed to supplant the not always essential trimming device. This is manifest in the felt turban illustrated and featured by Camille Rorer.

The leaf, an important decoration in millinery as elsewhere, here contrives to follow the contour of the head in numbers and to frame the face in the accepted line.

Black velvet in a draped turban clinging close to the head is an Agnes version with a pert little bow at the side back. A bowknot, pin with flexible tasselled ends supplies brilliance and is placed in the present favored position above the left eye.

Brim do not efface themselves entirely but rather manoeuvre to add a flaring outline when the face requires this. In one model pictured the brim rolls up over the left side of the crown, with the space filled by a bow of grosgrain ribbon.

Bows frequently are tucked in most effective places.

Color is insinuated into the back hat of felt by means of shirred or braided velvet. Rose Valois (pink, rose, mauve and green) twist into the soft braid which wanders over the tiny black hat shown.

Taffeta and satin in three, five and five-inch widths are spread in many attractive colors and signs. Tied bows are attached means of a patent clasp.

Today's Paris Style News

By ALICE MAXWELL APPO

NEW sets of handbag and belt are made of leather links forming chains which are sewed together like straw braid. These leather chains are either monochrome or multicolor.

Caracul muffs are shaped like handbags. A late fancy in umbrellas is one having a pencil in the handle.

Reboux makes a beret cap cut high above both eyebrows and way down over the right ear.

The evening cap makes its appearance in gold net with various forms of decoration, especially gold paillettes. One cap shaped over the ear in curl effect was covered with gold spangles.

Strapping the back décolletage as though the exaggeration in low cuts had gone far enough is noted. A white satin gown seen was strapped with gold ribbon. Several velvet dresses have narrow strappings of self material, somewhat building up the low back treatment.

Pearls are the outstanding ornament in theatre audiences. Many strings of them are worn, some in triple form. Pearl earrings are either pendant or button style.

For the Luncheon Hour

IMPECCABLE smartness and an absorption given to costume details is most apparent among women lunching at fashionable retreats.

Color contrast is a vogue contributing much interest to feminine attire, and one strongly marked whether in frocks or coat ensembles.

Notable in a modish gathering was the costume sketched at the right, a costume consisting of a grey cloth coat trimmed amply in kimmer and a crepe frock of slate blue, the felt hat and bag matching the dress in perfect tones.

Tweeds find place in restaurant fashions, particularly in brown shades. In fact, in current daytime styles of this sort tweeds outnumber any other fabric for the chic costume.

Unusual seaming and the irregular hemline contrive to place the tweed dress sketched apart from its contemporaries. This, in brown and beige, was worn with a belt of brown suede finished with a gold buckle.

And with the well-cut frock the accessories chosen were a hat of brown felt, brown bag and shoes, and a scarf made of small animals.

Purple by reason of its infrequency strikes the eye agreeably, especially when the costume is faultless.

A very dark shade of purple on the reddish cast is the color of the frock at the left, selected by a youthful blond woman at a luncheon hour last week and worn with a close-fitting felt hat to match.

Two silver foxes complemented her costume perfectly.

Dainty Swiss Embroidery

TRAVELERS who have visited Switzerland and seen the women of Appenzell painstakingly embroidering fine linen handkerchiefs are intrigued at the display of this work seen in one of the avenue shops.

Each square of fine embroidery and cut work surrounding a well designed initial adorn sheer white mouchoirs that will appeal to those of ultra-refined taste in this accessory.

This is one of the daintiest types of handkerchiefs that can be selected for a Christmas gift of the kind.

BELTS pique one to an interest in their behalf. There is a wide range of choice in the leathers, but quite as extensive a selection is available in belts of ribbon.

Moire and grosgrain ribbons in one inch width or more are smart with flashing metal or stone buckles. When a dull-toned belt is not the requisite, perhaps metalized ribbon will add the correct note to a frock.

Princess Skirts Widen Aggressively

INSISTENCE upon the princess line in evening gowns seems no deterrent to couturiers in the matter of insinuating fullness into skirts.

This sometimes reaches enormous proportions in one way or another and usually is concentrated at one or both sides.

Taffetas in flowered designs are charming media for the newer silhouette evolved through the use of stiff fabrics.

A huge choux of the printed taffeta and pointed train of deep folds are emphatically exaggerated in the Cheruit evening frock illustrated.

Although the fullness is centred at the back, it swings boldly out to the sides and the narrow skirt itself shows increased width as well as length at the right side.

Lanvin, employing taffeta, acquires skirt width by continuing the princess line from normal waistline to irregular hem by inserting such fullness that the skirt literally spreads out to extremes.

The lace dress occupies a place of prominence in the evening mode, embodying as it does several new phases of smartness.

Laces in themselves are more interesting. The newest of the season are those of the chenille and circ types.

Black circ lace and tulle form the bodice of the evening frock pictured from Cyber, the lace cut in a deep U, suggesting a low décolletage. Irregularly applied tiers of tulle are posed on a skirt of tulle and lace combined. And for additional width, a swath of wide ribbon ends in a large bow on the left hip.

By way of introducing variety into the hemline of a black circ lace gown seen, the back of the skirt is divided, thereby making two long panels or trains of different lengths, an effective method of increasing the length of the dress.

The Sphere of Tweeds

with fur cravat arrive to extend the wearing of tweeds into the colder months.

Negligee Ensemble

DELIGHTFULLY imitating day and evening wear, intimate apparel has evolved its own ensemble. This comprises a glove silk nightgown in flesh color bound and applied in the peach shade of which the negligee is made.

The coat to this boudoir ensemble follows the prescribed lines of the coolie negligee with a four-inch hem finishing the bottom and the sleeves.

Petit Point on Slippers

CREPE DE CHINE evening slippers of rich monochromes, such as green, light red and the new blue, are enlivened and made very intriguing by motifs of petit point embroidery which decorate the toe and sometimes the shank.

Slippers of this kind are exceedingly attractive when worn with a frock of plain tone. Hose may be of silver or gold mesh or perfectly matching shade.

Lace Garter Brassieres

EXQUISITE lace in twelve or fourteen-inch widths, backed with equally as fine net is used to fashion lovely little brassieres for the slim young woman particularly fastidious as to her underthings.

A few well placed darts insure a perfect molding of the figure and from the waistline hem of this dainty garment four silken elastic garters with very tiny clasps are attached, the shoulder ribbons matching the pastel shade of the elastic.

Novelties in Accessories

AT the expense of reiteration must be asserted that jewelry remains to dazzle the eye and sound the last note of perfection in the costume of Winter chic.

Much of the jewelry being shown in the shops rises above the plane of mediocrity by assuming some monetary value. Carved semi-precious stones are the chosen media for necklaces.

Jade, carnelian and stones of light value are used in the type of necklace shown from Worth, black alternating with the gems.

Glass beads in solid colors, in tones and multicolored effects for several strands held together by larger beads. This after the manner of Chanel.

The handbag bag in black satin antique and raffia is one of the novelties of the week.

Accompanying a two-piece frock of velvet is a belt of brown cashmere in narrow width with a bob appended to catch one end of a large knotted handkerchief. A double-handled bag of envelope style in the same leather is carried with this costume.

Hair Bows for Juveniles

FASHION decrees that the bob locks of the curls of the little miss wear a jaunty ribbon bow.

Very beautiful ribbons express designed for the purpose and cut required lengths are shown in fusion in the shops.

Taffeta and satin in three, five and five-inch widths are spread in many attractive colors and signs. Tied bows are attached means of a patent clasp.

An Open Letter

During the past few months and more particularly the last few weeks, certain statements have been made to the public by the door-to-door canvassers of certain household appliances, in an effort to injure and break down a growing and well-earned public confidence in the Power Laundries of this city. The undersigned wish to take this opportunity of answering some of these false statements so that the public will not be erroneously influenced.

It has been said that the Power Laundries use INJURIOUS chemicals in their washing processes

We suffer from a misunderstanding of the term "chemicals," for we live on "chemicals"—on some of the very same "chemicals" that help clean our clothes. The water we drink, for instance, is a chemical compound of the gases oxygen and hydrogen. We breathe air that is a chemical mixture of oxygen, nitrogen and inert gases. Everything we wear and use is "chemical," only most of us haven't appreciated it heretofore.

No work can be done without the assistance of "chemicals" in some form. These helpful "chemicals" are friendly "chemicals."

In common with those of the housewife, our friendly "chemicals" are a mild soda, Javelle water, chipped soap and pure soft water.

Consider these.

Everyone has eaten more excess soda ash in biscuits than is commonly used on the family washing in the laundry.

The snowy whiteness which you secure with bleaches is obtained by us with an even milder preparation—Javelle Water. It was this same Javelle Water that was so helpful during the war in purifying wounds.

But these materials are only incidental in our laundry. Our principal "chemical" and real cleansing agent is pure soft water. This water in which your clothes are washed by us is changed as many as from nine to twelve times in the washing process. It is this soft water, with creamy suds, that gives to our laundry work its characteristic beautiful appearance.

It is alleged that Laundries are "hard" on clothes

Laundry-washed clothes last longer because the soft water laundries use, plus nine to twelve purifying baths and rinses, completely removes every trace of fabric-destroying dirt. Rubbing is eliminated by cylinder washers which dissolve dirt by gently swishing creamy suds and soft water through every fabric pore. Remarkable spinning baskets extract the water from the clothes without injuring a single thread. And ironing equipment, delicate enough to smooth wet tissue paper without tearing, is but another of the numerous advancements that characterize present-day laundries. Visit a modern laundry. Then you will understand why thousands of homemakers now depend upon fabric-saving laundry methods for relief from irksome wash-day toil. They know from experience that laundry-washed clothes last longer.

The argument is used that Laundry washing COSTS MORE than home washing

A group of college girls, students at the Omaha University, decided to "keep books" on what home washing actually costs. They went into an average home, did average weekly washings, and here is what their carefully-kept accounts showed:

Depreciation on Washing Machine costing $175.00 at 10 per cent per year:
$17.50 per year, or, per week.....	$.33
Interest on $175.00 at 5 per cent:
$10.50 per year, or, per week.....	.20
Electric current.....	.10
Water.....	.05
Gas.....	.12
Soap, actual cost.....	.10
Washing Powder.....	.05
Blueing.....	.02
Total.....	$.97

The laundry charge in Victoria for doing these same washings would have been $.83. It cost them more to do the work with home equipment than it would have cost to send it to the laundry, aside from the value of their own time and efforts.

Have you ever kept accounts on YOUR washing? Do it for a few weeks and you will dispose of your home equipment without further delay. For home washing today is an EXPENSE instead of a saving.

The undersigned laundries will do your washing for 5c a pound (called for and delivered) with a minimum bundle as low as 50c per week. Your bundle will be sweeter and cleaner than home equipment has ever done it, and you will have a saving from 9c to 25c a week below your present costs.

Home-washing equipment is a luxury, not a saving

Because most of us here in North America are accustomed from childhood to every conceivable convenience, we oftentimes accept as quite commonplace much which others think most marvelous.

Can you call to mind, for example, anything seemingly more matter of fact than the bundle of clean clothes we bring weekly to your door?

Yet in less than a dozen of the world's eighty-odd countries is this service to be had at all.

And if opportunities for comparison were available, you would find the contents of your bundle whiter, sweeter, and more sanitary, and the service more satisfactory than is obtainable by any other means.

We are able to give you this service because we, with other modern laundry owners in this country, have the help of the L.N.A.

L.N.A. means Laundryowners' National Association. From this organization in the last quarter century have largely come those methods which enable us to save clothes for you while we wash them.

What cleansing agents to use, how to wash, rinse, starch and iron most pleasingly—all this and much more has been worked out for us and for you by this far-looked institution. You get its service as well as ours when you send us your family bundle.

Practically every modern laundryowner in the country is a member of the L.N.A. From its headquarters at La Salle, Ill., and from its department of research at the Mellon Institution of Industrial Research, University of Pittsburgh, come methods and suggestions which every day help us to save clothes, save time and save money for you.

Laundering has become the approximation of an exact science. Laundrymen of today are specialists. They know. They have learned the secret of improved cleansing. It is such specialists as these who do your washing when you send it to the modern laundries.

Shakespeare's Hornbook Discovered in Stratford

Mr. Archibald Flower, Chairman of Memorial Theatre, Relates Story of Finding of Ancient Relic of the Poet

"When one remembers the fabulous sums given in the present day for any of the early editions of Shakespeare's works, and the absence of any of the poet's personal belongings, one can realize the value of anything which can be shown to have actually belonged to him," said Mr. Archibald Flower, chairman of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, who is visiting the city, during the course of a conversation with The Colonist last evening. Mr. Flower, perhaps the world's greatest authority on William Shakespeare, has many interesting anecdotes to relate regarding the great poet, and together with Mrs. Flower, he entertains hundreds of visitors to Stratford each year. Tourists from the United States in particular, and from all the overseas British Dominions, make Stratford-on-Avon the Mecca of pilgrimages to England, and in many cases, sums out of all proportion have been paid by Shakespeare enthusiasts for anything pertaining to even the name of the poet. The Stratford-on-Avon Festival Company has played to many thousands of these overseas visitors, and has now nearly completed its first visit to the North American continent. "For a comparatively small sum," said Mr. Flower, "we are bringing Shakespeare to the people of Canada and the United States, many of whom will perhaps never have the opportunity of visiting us in Stratford."

EXPERT ON WATCH

The recent "find" in Stratford of an ancient "hornbook" has made a great stir, not only in the town itself, but throughout the world, for this book has been proved, without doubt, an authentic relic of Shakespeare himself. The name "hornbook," explained Mr. Flower, was originally applied to a sheet containing the letters of the alphabet which formed a primer for the use of children. It corresponded to the old sampler, of later date. It was mounted on wood and protected with transparent horn. Sometimes the leaf was simply pasted against the slice of horn. The wooden frame had a handle, and it was usually hung at the child's girdle. The sheet, which in ancient times was of vellum, and latterly of paper, contained first a large cross, the alphabet and small letters following. The vowels then formed a line, and their combinations with the consonants given in tabular form. The Lord's Prayer and a row of Roman numerals were written at the bottom. Ben Jonson describes the hornbook:

"The letters may be read, through the horn
That make the story perfect."

Thus, interesting in itself, the Shakespeare hornbook is valuable beyond any price, and has now a permanent home where it rightly belongs.

CURIOUS DISCOVERY

Mr. Flower continued: "Owing to the ever-increasing numbers visiting the birthplace and Ann Hathaway's cottage, it was found necessary to make plans by which visitors could pass through these places in a continuous stream instead of having to pass up and down the same staircase."

"This was comparatively easy in the birthplace by making an opening between the upper museum and the birth room."

"In Ann Hathaway's cottage people used to go up a very narrow stair to see the bedrooms and return the same way, while others were trying to get up, but at the other end of the cottage there was a room with a separate stair which was used for the custodian as a guestroom."

"The trustees acquired another cottage for the custodian and arranged that the stair at the far end should be used for visitors to descend. This involved some minor alterations to the upper floor and the removal of a partition which rested on a large beam on the floor."

Mr. Flower explained that in dealing with any old buildings in Stratford the greatest care is taken in case any wall paintings or other things of historical interest are found.

FIND MAKES STIR

Mr. Flower continued: "An expert is kept on the watch all the time, and while making good the floor from which some boards had to be removed, the workmen were clearing out some mortar, and dust and threw out a piece of oak about five inches deep by eight inches wide, and the architect and custodian took this to Mr. P. C. Wellstead, the secretary and librarian to the trustees. He said at once, 'This is the remains of an old hornbook.' The handle had been broken off but the spine remained and several of the nails which had fastened the piece of horn which protected the parchment on which the letters of the alphabet, etc., were inscribed. On turning it over two initials were seen roughly carved on the back. The first was clearly 'W' for it had been easy to cut the four strokes across the grain of the wood. The second was less distinct, and at first he was in doubt whether it was an 'S' or a 'B'. The central horizontal line was so straight that a 'B' was indicated, but the perpendicular line which would have been as easy to cut as any of the lines in the 'W' was by no means distinct."

Careful photographs were taken and authorities at the British Museum were consulted, but were not prepared to give a definite decision. It was known that a William Baker had lived in the cottage after the Hathaways' time, so it would have been not unlikely to find a hornbook with the initials 'W.B.' cut on it."

"Someone suggested having the photograph enlarged and when this was done it was clearly indicated that the letter was 'S'. The letter had been started at the top right, but it was difficult to make the curve across the grain, and when the knife or other tool came to the centre it had evidently slipped and made a straight cut, but then a fresh start had been made and the 'S' clearly finished with a curve at the bottom."

MOUSE MARKINGS

"It seems natural to suppose that when William Shakespeare went off to London his wife should have been back to the home of her parents and taken the children with her, and that, when they were old enough to learn their letters, their mother should have taken William's hornbook to teach them. Later they would in all probability have used this as a battle-dore and the handle become broken, and that later the remaining bit of board had been inserted under the floor to stop a rat or mouse-hole. There mark right across it evidently made by the feet of many generations of rodents."

"In any case here had been found the remains of a hornbook with the initials 'W.S.' carved on it, and it must have been in Ann Hathaway's cottage for some centuries."

"The trustees are offered many objects supposed to be in some way connected with Shakespeare, but most of these are forgeries, or at least their history is difficult to prove. A few months ago a diary written by a clergyman named Ward about 100 years after Shakespeare's birth, while he was vicar of Stratford, came on the market and was bought by Dr. Rosenbach, of New York, for a thousand guineas. This is mostly made up of medical prescriptions, but has a few allusions to Shakespeare in it."

"It is interesting to note that soon after the poet's death he was thought so much of that it became profitable to produce spurious portraits for sale," concluded Mr. Flower.

FLYING DANGERS

Sir—Through the medium of your columns I would like to draw attention of the proper authorities to an incident which I witnessed on Thursday about 2:30 p.m. An airplane came north up the flying field at a low altitude, and when over the sheds and Lansdowne road banked sharply to the east just as our car and a group of young girls—I presume Normal School pupils—were passing. When the machine was at its steepest inclination the wing tips were approximately twenty feet above the shed roof. A side slip or error of judgment at the instant the machine was passing over the road and there would have been a tragedy involving death and injury to those children and other passers-by, and remember, we could not have exclaimed, "Well, well, who'd have thought it!" for the hazard is there all the time for the responsible authorities to see.

During the whole of Thursday a machine was constantly—not once or twice—passing over houses, streets and power light wires certainly as low as fifty feet.

The accident of Friday involved the occupants of the machine only, but the crash could just as easily have been into someone's home or involved passers-by on the road, and it is surely high time that some action was taken to protect the lives and property of other members of the community whose homes are adjoining the flying field.

In a previous letter, which you kindly published, attention was drawn to the close proximity of the University and Normal Schools and the Jubilee Hospital and the ill-effects on students and the sick and aged people of having machines constantly flying overhead. The fact of the matter is that the flying field is in the wrong place, and further, should be of sufficient area to allow machines to take off and climb to such altitude before attempting to cross public thoroughfares or buildings so as to insure minimum risk and inconvenience to those in the immediate vicinity of the aerodrome. Immediate action should be taken by the authorities before some worse accident has to be recorded.

RADIO AND POLITICS

Sir—When Mr. Charles St. Barbe launched his spirited counter-attack against those agencies which had offended his olfactory and other senses, he might have included in his list of aural offenders the local broadcasting station. Happening to get them on my infra-heterodyne set last night I was regaled for a time with a recital of the many advantages which Victoria (not forgetting her caravanserial) possesses. Occasional mention of C.P.T. etc. left no doubt in the listener's mind as to whom he was listening. We were next promised some tunes. While the band was being hastily collected, the company present at the Empress grill room amused us for several minutes with "noises heard off." After the tunes were over, the chorus of Corybants again obliged with an imitation of a cyclone in extremis. Worse was to come. A gentleman proceeded to make a political speech on behalf of Dr. MacLean.

Fed to the teeth with the "tumult and the shouting" from across the line, which proceeded their election, and not unmindful of the plaintive tones of the persevering—how, I am sure, will High Todd, I hastily switched off.

I do not doubt, however, that he reiterated the dictum that noise out a liberal can do anything for us at Ottawa.

In stating this, Dr. MacLean is only echoing the edict of Premier King who, at a by-election in Kelowna, informed his audience that if they returned Mr. Grote Sterling to Ottawa, he might have time to shake him by the hand, as they magnanimity and impartial sportsmanship are outstanding characteristics of this high-minded gentleman, there is no reason to suppose that he might shake Mr. Plunkett by the hand when he returns to Ottawa, with a nail in his pocket for the coffin of the Liberal Government, though he would probably prefer to shake him in another manner. Trusting that I have not damned anybody with faint praise.

Can you inform me if this club is older than all others on the Pacific Slope?

DRYDOCK FACILITIES

Sir—Victoria has been a lost contract to Seattle because the Albion Star could not be dry-docked here. The Seapool was planned in the first section of the dock with about thirty feet of waste space to spare.

It would seem that had she been brought in as far as was actually possible the caisson could have been closed immediately astern of her, and two sections of dock have been left available for the Albion Star instead of only one. The dock is actually easily capable of handling both vessels at once, except for what has been an oversight in docking the first vessel.

It is reported that the latter only needed fifteen feet more room to get in.

The Seapool is actually utilizing two-thirds of the dock space for herself, though she is only one-third as long as the dock or less.

FEDERAL BY-ELECTION

Sir—Do you remember about twenty-five years ago a Federal election being held in Victoria when the late Mr. Prior was the Conservative candidate and Mr. Riley afterwards Senator Riley ran in the Liberal interest? The Liberal party was in power at Ottawa at the time, and after the discovery of the Klondike, and there was an agitation on foot for the establishment of a mint in Canada, and the electors were asked that if they returned Mr. Riley he would get the mint established in Victoria. The election slogan was "Riley and the Mint." They fell for it and Mr. Riley was returned, and what was the result? The mint was established in Ottawa where any sane person would expect it to be, but very soon after the election an assay office was established in British Columbia by the Federal Government in—where? do you think?—why, Vancouver, of course and Victoria got left as usual.

Now, Dr. MacLean and his party are using as a slogan "Port Improvement for Victoria" and are promising what the good Doctor will do for us if he is elected. If the electors fall for it again, and he is returned, we shall probably hear soon after the election that another pier is to be built by the Federal Government in Vancouver Harbor.

SCOTTISH WIN FIRST HALF RUGBY CHAMPIONSHIP

Greenshirts and City Go Into Tie for Leadership in First Division Soccer

Victoria City Have Easy Win Over C's; Wests Held to Draw

Churchmen Taste 8-0 Defeat at Beacon Hill—Thistles Split Points With Greenshirts When Score is 1-1—Esquimalt Wins 3-0

Victoria City went into a tie with the First Division Soccer League yesterday when they showed the Five C's under a 2-0 defeat at Beacon Hill, while the Saanich Thistles were materially aiding the City by holding the Wests to a 1-1 draw at the Royal Athletic Park. Esquimalt entered the win column again when they accounted for the Westholmes by a 3-0 verdict at Central Park.

With but two games remaining on the schedule of the Victoria and District Football League, the race for honors appears to have narrowed down to a two-team affair, namely Victoria City and Victoria West. Saanich Thistles and Esquimalt, however, have an outside chance of grabbing the honors, while the Five C's and the Westholmes are decidedly out of the picture. The top teams have thirteen points apiece, with Saanich and Esquimalt, joint occupants of second place, with ten points.

THE STANDINGS

Team	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Victoria City	4	3	0	1	13	7	13
Saanich Thistles	4	3	0	1	13	7	13
Five C's	4	2	1	1	11	9	10
Westholmes	4	1	1	2	8	20	10

WESTS IN DRAW

Victoria West relinquished their sole right to the top berth in the First Division Football League when the best they could do was to gain a 1-1 draw with the Saanich Thistles in a somewhat ragged exhibition at the Royal Athletic Park. The hosts from Saanich were the first to score when Price beat Hetherington with a sloppy shot after ten minutes of play in the opening half, the ball just rolling into the net.

Victoria West took up the offensive play following this counter, but the effective kicking of Harper and Joe Crowe, sturdy fullbacks for the Thistles, kept the hosts free from penetration. And behind this pair of defenders was Jack Rodgers, who was capable of handling all that the greenshirts put his way. Saanich Thistles scored again in this half, but Fred Oliver, the official arbitrator, disallowed the goal and gave a free kick in the Wests goal mouth. Minnie shot during a Thistle attack and Hetherington cleared, but in doing so the ball hit the crossbar and bounced over to Price who nailed with an easy drive. Just as soon as the ball sagged the net Oliver blew his whistle, but he was the only one that knew why.

The Wests and the Thistles staged a number of attacks before the termination of the first half, but no additional scores resulted.

WESTS ATTACK

From the commencement of the last half the greenshirts were on the attack, in fact for fully twenty minutes they looked like the only team on the field, but still the opposing defence kept them out. After an exceptionally close call, during which Robinson banged the leather at one of those spectators who always like to park right on the goal posts, the Wests came back and netted their only counter. Harper, in endeavoring to clear, lost the ball and Dickinson beat Rodgers when only about six feet from the goal mouth. Wests fought hard for the counter that would have kept their position at the top of the league intact, but met with no success.

Saanich Thistles put on a great fight towards the latter half, but had the opposing defence slightly worried, but their attacks, like those of their opponents, were as fruitless as a barren tree. The Thistles played the better part of the game with ten men, Williams having to retire with muscular trouble. Just a few minutes before the whistle Popham collided with one of the position and had to be carried from the field.

Oliver refereed and the teams were:

Victoria West — Hetherington, Whyte, Hawkes, Sherratt, Peden, Popham, Thompson, Stewart, Richardson, Robinson and Minnie.

Saanich Thistles — Rogers, Joe Crowe, Harper, D'Arcy, Viggers, Jim Crowe, Williams, F. Price, Easter, Minnie and Ewing.

ESQUIMALT WINS

The Westholmes outfit showed better form when they played the Esquimalt team yesterday afternoon, than has marked any of their performances this season. Esquimalt won the match with three goals to nothing, but Westholmes gave them plenty to think about, and in any case, judging from the performance of Robertson, the Westholmes goalkeeper last week, the score should only have been two goals to the winning side, since Robertson put the third scoring shot winder past him in a most distressing manner.

The referee's watch was creeping towards the half-time mark before the Westholmes scored their first goal, which was a pass which had no effect. It was really a clever continuation of a pass which he had no effect. It was really a clever continuation of a pass which he had no effect.

Shortly before half time, however, Wagland drew first blood, and his example was followed soon after by Stewart, who made a pretty shot. There was really a clever continuation of a pass which he had no effect. It was really a clever continuation of a pass which he had no effect.

During the second half there were plenty of pretty passes along the Westholmes left wing, which should have resulted in at least one or two goals, but the defence was too strong. The inside forwards to control the ball, Wagland scored the last goal, but Robertson immediately cleared, but Robertson immediately cleared, but Robertson immediately cleared.

Percy Payne refereed and the teams were:

Esquimalt — Chalmers, Sweeney, Joe Watt, Banks, Mesher, N. Price, Stewart, John Watt, Wagland, Collier.

Westholmes — Robertson, Stevens, Carmichael, Cooper, Carter, Vick, McNaughton, Dick, Carver, Snedden and Thayer.

C'S SNOVED UNDER

After holding Victoria City to a 1-0 score up to the interval, the Five C's crumpled under the onslaught on their net in the second half, and lost out by an overwhelming score of 8-0 at Beacon Hill. A large crowd of fans witnessed the one-sided battle.

The opening of the interval period saw the Five C's taking up the attack, and soon after the commencement they forced a corner kick, which proved fruitless. Play then hovered around the C's' goal and Claude Bissell nearly sagged the help for the first goal, but shot wide of the goal. Campbell was awarded a corner kick, which he placed accurately in the goal mouth, but Barnwell retained the situation by heading the leather to safety. Ten minutes after the whistle the C's were left with one man short, when a corner tumbled his ankle and was forced to retire from further play. Hamer, Quinton and Bob Shanks were continually harassing the City's defence, but Bridges handled every shot with ease.

Claude Bissell, centre forward for the City, opened the score after fifteen minutes of play. Campbell crossed over the leather beautifully and Bissell went in on the kick and drove the leather passed Willoughby, leaving him no chance to save. The quality never came after the kick-off, when Bob Shanks carried the ball down his wing, worked his way towards the City goal and sent in a hard drive which the goalie saved. Shanks continued in on the rebound and shot a wicked drive at Bridges, when he was forced to dive full length across the goal mouth to prevent a score. Bissell broke clean the C's defence and with only Willoughby to beat was robbed of the goal when the latter pulled off a wonderful save by dashing across the net like a flash. Just before the rest period the C's goalie was called upon to stop a fast drive from Cameron's toe, which he did in spectacular fashion.

Taking up the offensive after the interval the City never let up until the game terminated. Only three times in this half did the hosts bother the City's goalkeeper. Shortly after the whistle Claude Bissell registered his second goal with a fast drive from close quarters. Cameron drove through after the kick-off and beat Willoughby all the way. It was only a matter of a few minutes when the City scored their fourth only when Cameron centred nicely and Preston drove the leather home at a fast clip. Claude Bissell chalked up his third goal of the game by converting Cameron's centre, while Stophor made it 6-0 by heading Campbell's corner past Willoughby.

The Orphans put up a game stand, but in the second half the heavy pounding of the Tigers began to take its toll, and from then on until the finish it was a parade for the yellow and black.

SARACEN WINS AT MANCHESTER

Steve Donoghue Pilots Major Courtauld's Horse Home in Last Important Flat Race

NORWEST SECOND; NESTORIAN THIRD

MANCHESTER, ENGL., Nov. 24.—Saracen, by Gay Crusader out of Love Oil, owned by Major J. S. Courtauld, won the November Handicap today. Norwest was second and Nestorian third. Twenty ran.

There were one and a half lengths between first and second and five lengths between second and third. The betting was 2 to 1, 9 to 1 and 30 to 1.

Today was the final big race of the flat season. Rain was falling at intervals and conditions were none too good.

The field of twenty was identical with the probable 15th Century list. Aduel got away in front at the start, followed by Flying Arab, West, Wicklow and Saracen. Autocrat broke last.

Half-way, Nestorian led from Saracen, Norwest, Buoyant Bachelor and Aduel. Entering the straight Norwest moved into a slight lead over Saracen. The couple were followed by Nestorian, West, Wicklow, Buoyant Bachelor and Sir Joshua.

A furlong from the finish Donoghue rushed Saracen into the lead, and extending his stride the colt went on to win a good race. His time was 2:48 2-5.

A GOOD PLAY FROM TIP-OFF

What is one successful play from the tip-off?

Answered by NELS NOEGREN, Coach of Basketball, University of Chicago

This is how one such successful play is worked. The centre bats the ball to left forward, who has closed in toward the centre. The left forward gives the ball to the right guard, who has crossed the floor and is going up the field. The right guard dribbles until within shooting distance and then shoots. The left guard must lay back as defensive man. The right forward goes up under the basket he is attacking and either serves as a feint, or, if the right guard is in trouble, is there to receive the pass from him and make a shot.

BUCKAROO BOSS - - - By Moyer

WHEN the Portland Buckaroos invade here Tuesday night to take on the Cubs in a pro hockey fixture at the Arena, they will be accompanied by one of the stars of the game.

Bobby Rome will be with them. Not as a player as in the old days, but as pilot of the Portland Club.

Many a sigh will go up from the fans as they think of the Bobby they knew, his flashy, aggressive play, his speed, his stick-handling and his hard, accurate shooting, and realize that in future he will sit in the players' box and direct his plan of campaign.

There is not a city from Montreal to Victoria where hockey fans have not been thrilled by this veteran of the greatest Winter pastime.

McNeill opened the season by stepping into senior company as a boy of sixteen. In those days making a senior hockey team was something to boast about and Bobby was the youngest ever to make the grade.

He has starred on many a team from the old Renfrew Millionaires to the Seattle Met.

MacLeod, George, Tisdall, Brinkley, Coleman, Gardiner, Le Marquand, Rogers, McNeill, Hayman, Young, Walton, Monteki, Rutlan, Lowe, Godwin, Hume, Ellis, Crawford and Patterson.

The Ex-High fifteen had a somewhat easy time with the 16th Century Scottish when they handed them a decisive setback to the tune of 4-0 at the Oak Bay Park.

From the commencement the winners dominated the play and continuously pressed the soldiers' backfield. When Will Sturrock broke through for the Scottish in the first half, it was the first time that the soldiers scored this season. Ed Sturrock added the extra points with a beautiful kick from a difficult angle.

The second half saw play continuing in the Scottish's territory, and the winners scored three goals. The first was scored by Will Sturrock, who broke through for the Scottish in the first half, it was the first time that the soldiers scored this season. Ed Sturrock added the extra points with a beautiful kick from a difficult angle.

Victoria Cubs to Be Guests of Gyros Tomorrow

Manager Joe will tell the clubmen how the Cubs swept through Vancouver in the opening game, and also what he intends to do when his team wins the league championship. The Cubs will play Portland here Tuesday.

British Columbia Divided Into Different Divisions to Help Speed Up Handling of Basketball Play-Offs

CHOOSE OFFICERS' FOR NEXT SEASON

VANCOUVER, Nov. 24.—Delegates from various parts of the province in attendance at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Basketball Association, today adopted the draft of a constitution prepared by a special committee appointed last Spring, which it is hoped, will greatly simplify the increasing work in handling play-offs leading up to the provincial championships in the various divisions.

Under the new scheme the province will be divided into three districts: Vancouver Island, Interior and Lower Mainland embracing Vancouver and District, Fraser Valley and Up-Coast centres.

Each district will operate under an organization of its own, the Island and Interior already possessing such bodies, and will declare winners in each division. The executive, together with one member appointed by each district, will act as a provincial council, in control of provincial championships.

There was little difficulty in selecting officers for the coming season. The following were elected: Honorary presidents, Dr. R. W. Irving (Kamloops), Dr. R. H. Scanlon (Powell River), George S. Pearson, M.P.P. (Nanaimo), and Dr. A. Gillespie (Vancouver); president, C. M. Planta (Vancouver); first vice-president, J. H. Taylor (Victoria); second vice-president, A. Clark (Revelstoke); secretary-treasurer, Gordon T. Winter, retired, Gordon McKay, Kelowna.

The president and secretary were appointed to organize a Lower Mainland organization, with which all leagues operating within that district will be required to affiliate. Delegates in attendance were as follows: President, N. R. Porter; Secretary, G. T. Winter, W. McBryde, and C. M. Planta, Vancouver; M. Levis, Nanaimo; Vice-President J. H. Taylor, Victoria; H. P. Provins, Revelstoke (main line); W. Sharp, Chilliwack; Fraser Valley, M. Mowat, Powell River; R. Parkins, Interior secretary; Gordon McKay, Okanagan; A. Clark, Revelstoke, vice-president.

J.B.A.A. GO UNDER BEFORE TROOPS IN GREAT EXHIBITION

Oarsmen Withier in Last Ten Minutes After Having Big Edge in Play, and Sixteenth Score Two Tries—Large Crowd Sees One of the Speediest Displays in Years

Pirates Put Up Great Fight, But Prove No Match for Navy Fifteen

Making the best of two breaks in the last ten minutes after being outplayed in the earlier part of the game, 16th Canadian Scottish won the first half of the Senior Rugby League yesterday afternoon by defeating J.B.A.A., 6-0, at the Willows oval. The game produced more Rugby than has been seen in any encounter here in years. The largest crowd of the season was on hand. Weather and ground conditions were ideal.

Scottish won, but the best team lost. Despite the verdict, it was a real session of the English passing game, and there were few dull moments in the hour and ten minutes of play. Both teams worked like Trojans, with the oarsmen displaying the class in the back division, and the troops showing the way in the forward line.

The first half was more or less even, with the troops having a big edge in the opening fifteen minutes and the Bays showing the way for most of the rest. In the first twenty-five minutes of the second stanza, however, the Bays had it all over the Scots, and the second half onslaughts were directed at all times, but the oarsmen, although close time and time again, could not reach the objective.

Two tries in the last ten minutes tells the scoring end. Oliver getting the first on a fine three-quarter run, and Alexander the second on a missed three-quarter and forward move.

The work of the Bays' back line revitalized, and some of the finest runs pulled off here for many seasons were seen. Several times the Scottish touchline was only a few feet away from the Bays' back line. The Bays showed the way in the last ten minutes of the game, and the forwards on both sides were in a state of great excitement.

The Pirates summoned all their strength and strategy and hurled themselves upon their enemies. Fred Parfitt went at it hammer and tongs and managed to be everywhere. The Bays' defence was a wall of steel, and the Pirates' attack was a series of brilliant moves.

GREATER ACCURACY

On rough or weedy greens it is advisable to use a club other than a putter.

By AL ESPINOSA

Yes, I would say that it is advisable for the long putts in most cases, and perhaps in most cases, the ball can be chipped over rough spots with greater accuracy than it can be rolled over them with the putter. For playing this sort of stroke a malleable iron is the best club to use.

Defeat came to British Columbia after a momentary triumph, when after "Cokey" Shields, the red-haired back, had raced for a touch down from forty-yards out, Alberta scored the clinching touchdown. And it was this same Shields who had paved the way to victory who opened the way to defeat. The mad cheering of 2,000 spectators for Shield's score had barely died down when Alberta kicked off and the ball rolled across the British Columbia goal line. Shields dashed in, scooped it up and kicked. But the ball instead of sailing into the WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—An attempt to regain the world's auto-mobile racing crown for England will be made in March by M. H. O. Segrave, English driver who startled the auto world early last year with a straightaway mark of 208.79 miles an hour, nearly fifty miles an hour faster than the previous record.

Segrave's mark has twice been exceeded, once by a fellow countryman, Capt. Malcolm, and again by Ray Keech, American, who holds the present record of 207.35 miles an hour. He will bring to this country a new racing model and make his bid for the crown on one of the Florida beaches, or on one of the dry lakes of California.

Derby County Defeated In O.C. Soccer Surprise

Setback at Hands of Leeds United Puts Sheffield Wednesday on Top in English First—Notts County Beaten in Second

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The unexpected defeat of Derby County on their own grounds by Leeds United caused a change in the top of the averages in the First Division of the English Soccer League today. Sheffield Wednesday, a team which has been playing consistently well, today won from Liverpool and will lead the league for the next week. Derby County will occupy the second berth and Blackburn Rovers the third. In the Second Division, Notts County, the leaders, failed at Swansea, but they will hold onto their first place because they have a better goal average than Hull City who, however, are tied with them on points.

When Motherwell defeated St. Mirren in the Senior Scottish League feature, they improved their standing, coming into third place. Rangers won from Clyde to maintain their position at the top, and their unbeaten league record. Hearts lost at Kilmarnock, but they remain second place by superior goal average only.

SHARKEY SIGNED FOR THREE BOUTS

Boston Gob Will Fight Under Rickard's Promotion—First Mix Set for January

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Jack Sharkey has signed for three fights, under the promotion of Tex Rickard during the winter season.

The Boston heavyweight's opponents have not yet been selected, but Rickard said he would choose them from among Tom Heeney, Johnny Risko, Uzcudun, Knute Hansen and Young Stribling. Rickard plans to stage the Sharkey battles a month apart, starting in January.

It is understood that Rickard also has Sharkey under contract to meet Jack Dempsey again in the late Spring or early Summer, provided he disposes of his first three opponents and also contingent upon Dempsey attempting another comeback.

Sharkey has fully recovered from a training camp injury that has kept him on the sidelines for months.

HEAVY RATIO STATIONARY

Invading Fugilists Meet With Win and Loss in U.S. Battles—German Makes Hit

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—The ratio between the perpendicular and horizontal foreign heavyweights in this country remains the same as the result of the American debuts of the few latest importations. Max Schmeling, of Germany, caused something of a stir in Madison Square Garden last night by not only remaining on his feet through eight furious rounds of battling against Joe Monte, of Boston, but by coming out with a knockout victory. Johnny Wild, of Sweden, however, preserved the balance by assuming the horizontal position after only two and a half minutes of wild punching with Art Dekew, of Italy.

Schmeling made a hit with the fans by showing unusual speed for a 185-pounder coupled with a lot of boxing ability and a good punch. Monte seldom could land a solid blow, while the German hit hard and often enough to send him down for a count of nine in the fifth before knocking him out in the eighth.

Before the end of the battle ring-sliders were suggesting a bout between Schmeling and Con O'Kelly, fast and flashy Irishman who preceded him to this country by a few weeks and had won his two starts in an impressive fashion.

Wild came out of his corner against the huge Italian (falling both fists like a frightened small boy tackling a much larger opponent) and he was still swinging when the referee helped him back without a count after the second knock-down.

Golf Stars Play 22-40 of a Stroke Faster in 1928 Than They Did in 1927

Indications Are That 1929 Will See Even More Efficient Shooting

By BUNKER

Perhaps the most interesting fact brought out by the golf year just ended is that the ten leading medalists of America in 1928 played considerably better golf than the ten leading medalists of 1927.

Data upon the tournament performance of these stars indicates that golf unmistakably is progressing to new standards of brilliancy—a progress which can be measured in actual figures. As marvelous as it was during the season just passing into history it may be—indeed, it probably will be—surpassed in 1929.

The following table gives the ten leading medalists of 1928 the number of rounds each one played and the total strokes they employed, together with their grand average per round. It affords interesting comparison with the statistics for the same players in 1927.

Growth of Technical Education in B.C. Described

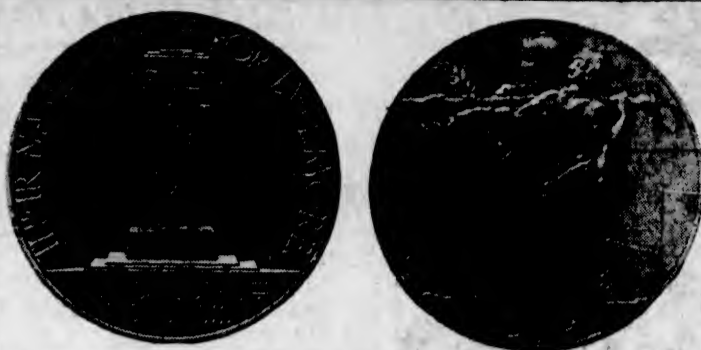

What Proposed Technical School Means to Citizens of Victoria
By SCHOOL TRUSTEE J. S. McMillan

HISTORICAL
Prior to the admission of British Columbia into the Dominion in 1871 the educational facilities in British Columbia were very limited, yet the early history of British Columbia, including Vancouver Island, lacks nothing of the romance, stirring adventure, deeds of heroism, and acts of self-sacrifice which make the story of other parts of the Dominion so attractive. The British claim to the Northwest Coast of America was contested in turn by Spain, Russia and the United States. The first school in the colony was built near Victoria in 1836 by the Hudson's Bay Company. Nine years later, in 1845, the Legislature of Vancouver Island adopted a system of free schools, and appropriated the sum of $10,000 for their support. The late Dr. Powell was the first president of the Board of Education.

In 1871 very few schools were in operation. From that time, however, up to the present day, education in British Columbia has made steady progress, as the growth in our school attendance clearly shows.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION
It is difficult to know when vocational education was first discussed as a desirable type of training for Canadians. About the time of Confederation, Hon. Mr. Carling,

Royal Mint Strikes Armistice Medal

To commemorate the tenth anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, the Royal Mint has announced the striking of a medal (left) from designs by C. L. Doman. The obverse of the medal (right) typifies "Deliverance." It shows a figure of a young warrior with a sheathed sword being supported by the figure of Britannia.

Commissioner of Agriculture for Ontario, stated in a report: "I have a growing conviction that something more is required to give our education a more decidedly practical character, especially with reference to the agricultural and industrial classes of the community, which compose the great bulk of our population, and constitute the principal means of our wealth and prosperity."

BEGINNINGS OF SYSTEM
Nova Scotia adopted a night school system away back in 1868; in 1868 their first night school was opened. A technical school was established in Halifax in 1907, one in Toronto in 1901, and one in Hamilton in 1909. During the period from 1900 to 1909, special efforts were made to introduce manual training into Canadian schools and, due to the interest and philanthropy of Sir William Macdonald, assisted by Mr. James W. Robertson, specially qualified teachers were brought from Britain and placed in schools throughout the Dominion.

A Technical Education Survey was appointed by the Dominion Government in 1910, and after carefully studying existing conditions and inspecting the work being done in Britain, Europe and the United States, they recommended a development policy of complete vocational education—providing for federal, provincial and municipal contributions with co-operation between schools and industries. The same time as this Dominion survey was appointed, the Province of Manitoba appointed a commission to study the technical education of other countries, especially the United States. In giving their report the members say "that it is desirable that technical education be provided for the people of this province." (Manitoba).

During this period also, Dr. Seath, Superintendent of Education for Ontario, was sent to Europe and the United States to study the technical education system. He also reported favorably towards its adoption.

The royal commission appointed by the Dominion Government made its report in 1913. Owing to the war, however, it was not until 1919 that the recommendations of this commission were adopted. The Dominion Government agreed to put aside $10,000,000 (Ten million dollars) for technical education, this sum to cover a period of ten years, ending on March 31, 1929. Since the above money was voted by the Dominion Government many progress has been made throughout the Dominion in technical education, as the following figures show:

Year	Day	Night
1919-20	8,512	51,827
1923-24	20,527	57,986
1926-27	34,703	60,313

Coming to our own province, British Columbia had made a good start prior to 1913 in vocational instruction, but the greatest period of growth has occurred since 1923.

ENROLLMENT GROWS
In 1919 this province had an enrollment of 990 students taking day courses in technical education, with 2,448 evening students. In 1927, we had 3,272 day students with 5,176 evening students taking technical instruction. The amount of money spent by this province on industrial or vocational education for 1926-27 amounted to $36,680. High school technical education is provided in New Westminster, Vancouver, Victoria and Point Grey. Victoria Centre had 163 students taking day technical courses in 1926-27. Included in the technical courses given in this province, correspondence classes are conducted by the Department of Education, specially designed to prepare men for the examinations required by the Department of Mines. The enrollment in these courses for miners is 209, the numbers fluctuating in accordance with trade conditions. Home-study courses are also provided to students living in the sparsely populated districts of the province, 391 pupils taking advantage of this method of training.

According to the latest report from the Dominion Director of Technical Education, this province ranks second in the Dominion for the number of day technical classes, and second for the number of night-school students. Manual training centres were established in Victoria elementary schools in January, 1901. This work is concentrated in a few centres and devoted exclusively to exercises in wood working, machine shop, practical nature. "Now manual training is simply a process by which hand and brain are trained to act together and to help each other; a process which, while properly a part of a cultural training, is recognized as possessing a practical value as well. In a sense it may be regarded as an introduction to industrial occupations."

PROGRESS HERE
Vocational education is more advanced than manual training and includes instruction in wood working, metal working, machine shop, practice, electrical work or any calling in life. These classes were established in Victoria in September, 1920. For girls, domestic science (which may be described as technical work for girls) was established in Victoria schools October, 1906. Evening technical classes, November, 1923.

We have already stated that technical instruction is given to 200 students now attending the Victoria technical classes. It is the aim, therefore, of the School Board to provide adequate and suitable conditions for these classes, and incidentally to increase the number of technical subjects taught, to give three years' course instead of a two years' course as at present provided.

Our appeal for a new technical school still stands, that suitable classrooms be provided for other subjects comprising technical, household economics, art, commercial and music.

NEED OF NEW BUILDING
The present High School was designed and built in 1913 to accommodate 1,000 pupils, with individual classrooms for thirty-five pupils. Today there are 1,339 students attending the High School, girls 674, boys 665, with an average attendance of 1,300. It can readily be seen there is not sufficient space in this building to accommodate the students, so little indeed that the School Board had to convert space in the building for tuition purposes which is totally inadequate for the purpose, at the same time using rooms in other school buildings to meet the present congested situation.

This congestion in the High School can only be relieved by providing a separate building, as other suggestions, including that of excluding nonresident pupils, building an addition to the High School have, on serious thought, been given to the subject, been found to be totally inadequate. It is quite true that we have 280 pupils from Saanich attending the High School. If they were withdrawn the school would still be overcrowded and the city would be losing a considerable amount in revenue—the actual revenue from this source being greater than the expenditure. The School Board therefore considers that the building of a new school is the only practical method of bettering the situation, both as regards congestion and providing suitable educational facilities along academic and technical training which will meet the requirements of Victoria for many years to come.

Other reasons why this school is required are:

1. The 395 students now attending the commercial classes, also those in the technical classes (201) will be transferred to the new building, thus reducing the present enrollment of High School students considerably, giving greater accommodation. With such transfer, the High School will become a purely academic centre.

2. A properly equipped technical school will provide the necessary training desired by our young men and women, especially those who are unfitted by nature for academic training.

3. The technical school is urgently needed to meet the requirements of those who desire technical instruction in the evening. It will become the centre for evening technical training. It will provide the necessary demands of apprentices and others who follow the various trades and occupations the school provides for their employment, thus giving these students a much better opportunity for success and advancement in their chosen vocation.

COURSES TO BE OFFERED
There will be five courses provided in the new technical school, as follows:

1. Commercial department (three-year course). The purpose of this course will be to combine a good general education with a training for practical business. It will endeavor to graduate students so trained that they will not only command employment but will be able to adapt themselves to and master the details of any duties which they may undertake.

2. Technical department (three-year course for boys). The aim of this course is to give a good high school education covering a broad foundation upon which to build technical training adapted to the pupils' aptitudes and the needs of the community. The subjects of this course will include English, history and civics, economic geography, drawing, mathematics, sciences and practical shop work. No attempt will be made to train a boy for any particular trade, but in the advanced years of the course opportunity will be given the boy to specialize according to his aptitudes and vocational future. Advances in all lines of technical work have been very rapid. The application of the sciences, mathematics, electricity, mechanical and applied art to the industries makes it absolutely necessary, for success and advancement, to possess a broad foundational training both in academic and technical subjects. The facilities for this course will include science laboratories, mechanical draughting rooms, and well-equipped shops for practice in wood working, metal working, electrical work, gas engines and auto mechanics.

3. Household economics department (three-year course for girls). This course will combine a good general education with instruction theoretical and practical in cooking, dressmaking, millinery, applied art and nursing, including first aid treatment, diet for the sick, care of the sickroom, etc. If the home is the main objective of our girls then our educational system should provide the opportunity of a sound preparatory training for their future careers as homemakers. Further, girls who from economic or other conditions will be employed in the commercial and industrial world are entitled to the preparatory training necessary for future vocational success. This department will also provide accommodation for household economics instruction to the girls in attendance at the academic high school.

4. Art department (three or four-year course). This department will provide instructional courses in the fine arts of drawing, painting and design, but particular emphasis will be placed on courses in applied and decorative arts adopted to meet the requirements of this city.

The first year of the course will provide a sound training in fundamental principles of drawing and design and applied art, which are the basic subjects of the industrial arts.

In the second year this course will be continued and elaborated. In the third and fourth years students will specialize in such fields of applied art as: Commercial art (lettering, posters, advertisements, etc.), needlework and embroidery, weaving, pottery, art metal work and all crafts pertaining to the natural resources of our province.

Fees will be payable with respect to the art courses, and it is anticipated that this department will be virtually self-supporting. Students under seventeen years of age, who are pursuing a course in general education may elect an instructional course in this department in place of some other academic subject. These students will not be required to pay fees.

COST OF NEW SCHOOL.
The estimated cost of the new technical school, including furniture and equipment, will amount to $250,000. Of this amount the Provincial Government will provide 40 per cent of the building cost and 50 per cent of the cost of equipment—a total of $105,000. Overhead expenses, including janitorial services, furniture, fuel, light, etc., will cost another $8,000, making the net total cost to the city $153,000.

To build, equip, maintain and operate the proposed new school will cost the ratepayer about 50 cents extra on each $1,000 assessment.

HOW TO DO IT

"Good morning!" said the film producer, and noticed that his visitor had a cast in her eye.

"And what can I do for you?" "I read in the paper that you're going to do a new film," said the visitor, "and I wondered whether you'd let me play the leading part."

"I am sorry," returned the pro-

"BARBERRY BUSH"

One Girl's Marriage Problems
By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Amy was in the rocker with Kate, sound asleep, in her arms. Sweet January sunshine was filtering through the spotless curtains and with the warmth from the radiator, giving an illusion of Summer to the peaceful, orderly room.

"But I can't remember getting sick," Barbara mused.

"It was that very night, the night Link and Joe Miller went down, it was while you were driving home in the car with Link that you had a sort of chill."

"I don't remember it at all!"

"Well, anyway, it was probably Mr. Miller who saved your life. Link was going to take you to his house—that would have been exciting, and confusing, naturally, telling his father all about it, sitting up half the night. But Mr. Miller—and it was a funny thing for him to do, too, for he's such a quiet old fellow—Mr. Miller told Link that he didn't like the chill at all. Much better to get you right into good care. It was only about 10 o'clock, you know, Christmas Eve. So Link took you to the hospital, and then went for Dr. Bonner and told him you'd had a shock and a chill."

Amy shook her head, shuddering.

"By that time, I imagine, you were all off," she resumed, turning a little pale. "Link says you called him 'Barry,' and seemed to think that you were going to New York. Just feverish, maybe. But the minute they got you in here they put you into bed, and Dr. Bonner came, and Ward."

"Ward? Was he here?"

"That was a part of the whole mixup, babe. Ward and I had come up that very day to surprise his family and spend Christmas with them. We were going down to see you on Christmas day. Ward's to be here, now, with Dr. Bonner. I wrote you all that."

"They got you up to the surgery that night," Amy added, after a silence, in which she had smiled down at Kate, and Barbara, lying weak, sweet, and utterly at ease among her pillows, had smiled at both. "And then, on the twenty-ninth something went wrong and they had to operate again. And that—"

Amy finished, with a great breath, and a desperate glance heavenward—that was the time we thought it was all up!"

"I haven't the faintest recollection of it," Barbara said, frowning faintly, narrowing her eyes, trying to remember it.

"Don't think about it, Barberrry Bush!" Amy pleaded, watching her nearly.

"Not for a while," she agreed, shutting her eyes. And after a while Amy was gone—and day was gone—and night was gone—and the queer circle recommenced again.

Presently she began to feel anchors beneath her, to talk with her nurses, to smile appreciatively at her trays.

One day Link Mackenzie came in with a box of white violets from the Mackenzie garden—no other garden in town had quite such violets.

"They feel like the Spring, Link."

"Well, Spring's due in a few weeks now."

"I can't believe it. Any mustard yet?"

"Mustard all over everywhere. And asacina bud down our drive, and iris commencing—all out the Mountain Charlie Road the place is blue with iris."

"I always love this time," but he saw a shadow back of the beautiful eyes that grew so dreamy.

"Link dear," she said, her voice clear and tender in the silence, "some day I'm going to—thank you. But it makes me cry now."

"That'd be silly."

"I know. I cry so easily, now."

"That's just weakness," Link said encouragingly.

"I know. But I seem to stay weak so long! That was Christmas eve—our birthday. And now it's almost February—[it'll be February tomorrow]. She lay still, two tears on her cheeks."

"Link, would he have killed you? Slender, I mean?"

"No, I don't think so. You're so strong, Barbara, that, even if he hadn't been drunk, you'd have been a match for him."

"No woman," she said thoughtfully, "ever thinks she's a match for me."

"Yes, but you would have done it for Kate."

"Yes," she agreed. "I might have done it for Kate."

"Shut your eyes, Barbara. It would make a good deal of character for me in this hospital if you'd just go to sleep."

She did shut them, but not before a delicious crinkle of laughter met his own; there was a half smile on her white face as she lay there, peaceful and still, her left hand touching the violets, her right still safe in Link's fingers.

He looked at Barbara, lying back, with eyes closed, the amber shadows of her rich, thick lashes falling on her thin cheeks. The top of her blue pyjamas buttoned with a Chinese cord and frog, her beautiful throat was bare, and the loosened rings of her coppery hair lay like little snakes' tails of bright wire against her white forehead.

Link looked at her for a long time; he imagined the mouth smiling, speaking, the eyes looking at him. He watched her breast rise and fall evenly, with the quiet beating of her heart.

Once she opened her eyes quite widely in faint alarm and looked anxiously about her. But immediately she saw Link, patiently sitting beside her, and with a child's confident look she dropped her head, shadowed, blue-veined lids again.

"What a good sport she is!" Link thought affectionately. She had had a hard fight and she was winning. He liked to think that he had been important to the victory.

Barbara had come back to life with one fixed conviction, and it was one he naturally shared, and one that all Cottonwood shared.

Barbara Albertson had had an awfully close call down there on that God forsaken ranch of the Du Spains, and if it had not been for Link Mackenzie's providential arrival at the critical moment she might not be alive today.

The entire town was praising Link. Link had brought her up to the hospital, Link had summoned the doctors, Link had magnificently made himself responsible for everything.

"Heaven, what a friend!" said nurses and doctors, smiling and shaking admiring heads. "Well, I guess this girl owes you her life, Link," said the doctor.

Amy carried on the chorus. "Barbara, you'd die at Link Mackenzie! He's simply determined that you're going to get well and that you're not to worry."

"He's perfectly wonderful. But that's Link; he does everything like that," Barbara said languidly, smiling.

Her first outings were in Link's roadster. Carefully bundled, she sat beside him on the low front seat and cried for joy because the bridal wreath and mock orange were beginning to bloom. Her first dreamy inquiries into ways and means were answered once and for all by Link.

"Barbara, I'll tell you what I've done. I've paid everything on the nail and kept a most careful account."

"You have kept an account?" she interrupted, raising blue eyes and tightening the fingers that lay in his.

"Every cent."

"You're a wonderful brother to have, Link." She quite innocently thought of him so, she could not praise him enough, talk about him enough. "I've always known that Link was the kindest person alive," she told Marianne upon the occasion of Marianne's first call, "but you have to be in trouble to know exactly how important kindness is!"

"Don't you?" said Marianne. "And Link has a sort of complex now, upon leaving no stone unturned in the matter of your getting well," she added. "He wants to talk to everybody about transfusions and anaesthetics."

"I suppose so!" Barbara said, with an indulgent smile. "I don't know how Barry and I can ever repay him!" she went on simply.

Barry! Cottonwood had small faith in anything he was going to do. But Marianne couldn't tell Barbara that.

"BREACH OF PROMISE"

The following story was told to me by a famous actress who took her five-year-old daughter to a jeweler's where her watch was to be repaired.

"It will be ready on Tuesday," said the little girl very seriously.

"I promise," replied the man smiling.

But on reaching the door the child turned round and said gravely, "If it is not mended then, I shall sue you for breach of promise."—Sunday Chronicle.
